ARRESTS FOR INTOXICATION FAR ABOVE AVERAGE SAYS CHIEF WOOD

There Were 226 Cases of Intoxication Recorded During 1923 According to Chief Wood's Annual Report—Recommends More Men and a More Modern Ambulance—The Report in Full.

There were 363 arrests during 1923 in Kingston, of which number 226 were women, according to the annual report of Chief of Police J. Allan Wood submitted Friday evening at the regular monthly meeting of the board of police commissioners. This was a record number of arrests in Kingston. Of that number, 226 were for public intoxication, which Chief Wood states is unusual and an indication that the use of intoxicants is far above the average. There were also 358 arrests made for auto violations. The use of intoxicants and the operation of automobiles equal 68 per cent of the arrests made by the police department last year.

Chief Wood recommends that the police force be increased by six regular men. If this was not possible, he suggests that the board ask the municipal civil service commission for a new eligible list in order that the temporary officers for summer could be drafted from the list. He also recommends that a more modern ambulance be obtained.

The chief's report, which makes interesting reading, is given in full below:

Police Department, City Hall.
Police Commissioners—Mayor, William C. Shafer, Joseph Beichert, Jr., the Rev. Frank B. Seeley, D. D., William D. Cashin.
Chief of Police—J. Allan Wood.
Detective Sergeants—William F. Hanley, Charles Phinney.
Patrolmen—Frederick J. Fout, William J. Reardon, William Hess, Augustus P. Kuehn, Arthur J. Dempsey, Robert F. Healey, Charles J. Murphy, James E. Welch, James V. Simpson, Raymond F. Saelhoff, Elbert L. Soper, James P. Martin, Guernsey Burger, Peter J. Camp, Peter Keresman, Frank H. Fatimy, Winfield Entrott, Urban Healey, William Benedelli, Raymond Van William Cramer, Shoemaker, John J. Hagen, Jacob Aley, Edward J. Leonard.

Patrol Driver—Simon Wood.
Police Matron—Miss Alice Bilyou.
Police Surgeons—Christopher F. Keefe, M. D., Frederick Snyder, M. D., Aden C. Gates, M. D.
To the Honorable Board of Police Commissioners of the City of Kingston, N. Y.

Gentlemen—It has been the custom for the last twenty-five or thirty years for the chief of police to render a report annually to your board of the operations of the department for the preceding year. The report usually contains information relative to the general work of the department and statistics showing disposition of arrests, etc., together with other information and recommendations for the good of the department. I will not depart from the usual custom although it is impossible for me to cover the detailed work of the department with the limited space at hand, but this work can be fully explained to you in the regular monthly reports.

The department as a unit has done good work. While at times unpleasant features have crept in these have been offset by a general disposition to work for the good of the department and for the interests of the citizens whom it serves. This is a trying age, but I believe that the peak has been reached and a more settled condition of affairs which involve general police supervision will soon be a fact.

Prevention of Crime.
It is impossible to show how much crime has been prevented in our city throughout the year, but we can by comparison with the records of other cities form an estimate of what might have occurred if a vigilant and efficient police force had not done its best to prevent crime.

Crime is a breach of the law; a public wrong; and is usually the result of disregarding the rights of others. Most crime is of the misdemeanor class and while a conviction for misdemeanor is a serious handicap to a great many persons at some period of their life it seems to be no longer feared or guarded against. To think lightly of violating the minor laws leads to disregard of the laws in relation to higher crimes.

A disregard for one law has a tendency to encourage disrespect for all laws and disrespect for authority. It is urged that the citizens take every precaution to prevent a tendency towards defiance of any law. The endeavor of the police is to encourage respect for lawful authority and they solicit the cooperation of the general public in carrying out this policy. Laws are enacted for a good purpose and when violated an injury is done. This all good citizens should bear in mind and resolve to obey the law and assist those whose duty compels them to enforce the law.

A police department is no stronger than the cooperation given it by the citizens whom it serves. The attitude of the public in reference to certain laws has had its effect on the morals of the police force but the police force has, I believe, withstood the test and with the cooperation of the public to encourage them, will be able to keep crime down to the minimum.

All Is Ready for Fez Revel

Dancing Begins at 9:45 Tuesday Evening After Prolonged Entertainment Program—Shriners Coming From Out of Town.

The final details for the Shriners dance have been worked out by the committees. The doors will open at 7:30 o'clock and at 8:45 o'clock the entertainment program will commence. Dancing will start at 9:45 o'clock after the entertainment program has been concluded.

Tickets will be on sale at the box office on the night of the dance, Tuesday, January 22. Refreshments will be served under the supervision of the ladies of the Industrial Home. The lemonade booth will be in charge of a committee of which Mrs. Philip Elting is chairman.

The Manhattan Ramblers' 12 will furnish the music for dancing and the Strand Male Quartet and Vocalists will entertain. The quartet comes highly recommended and is known to radio fans and phonograph lovers both as the Strand quartet, the National quartet and the Chic Company quartet.

Samuel Brown, chairman of the entertainment and music committee, promises a real evening's entertainment and a night of dancing surpassed by none.

George Schryver is chairman of the floor committee. Besides being on sale by all Shriners tickets may be procured at the following places in advance: Harry R. LeFevre, 292 Fair street; M. H. Herzog, 332 Wall street; S. Cohen's Sons, 331 Wall street; Henry C. Connelly, Broadway and Strand; Samuel S. Stern, 42 Broadway; B. W. Johnston, 26 Strand; and McBride's Drug Store, 634 Broadway.

A number of out of town Shriners have notified the committee that they intend to attend the dance which has gained a reputation among Shriners as one of the big events in Shriners circles. The red fez of the Shrine will be conspicuous next Tuesday evening.

Two Plays at "Y. W." Monday

Next Monday evening at eight o'clock the Y. W. C. A. girls will produce two clever one-act plays in the association recreation room for the benefit of the girls camp fund.

The first sketch, "My Aunt from California" relates the unexpected visit of the Aunt Mary at the Needy home. She comes with the intention of choosing one of the girls to go abroad with her and of course all three sisters make great efforts to please their aunt. The situation that develops is very amusing. The cast is as follows:

Sally.....Miss Elizabeth Kingman
Felicia.....Miss Isabelle Wight
Rosalie.....Miss Gladys Raiche
Aunt Mary.....Miss Helen Haukenbeck
Miss Needy.....Miss Jess Goodsell

Preceding the second play, a song and dance specialty will be given by Miss Agnes Donlon and Miss Luella Garrety, who take the part of "Little Girls."

"Mrs. Oakley's Telephone" is a light farce in which the action centers around misinterpreted telephone conversations. The parts played by the maid and cook are full of humor. The cast is as follows:

Mrs. Oakley.....Miss Nan Rodie
Constance.....Mrs. Gracia Millard
Emma.....Miss Eva Shook
Mary.....Miss Willie Van Vleet

Dancing will be enjoyed following the entertainment. A small admission fee will be charged.

VISITOR PLEASED WITH SENATE HOUSE UPKEEP

Editor of The Freeman.
My work calling me to Kingston upon several occasions, I have availed myself of the opportunity to visit the old Senate House, with its wonderful collection of Colonial, Revolutionary and Indian relics. Upon this last visit I was more than pleased to note the improvements that have been made by its custodian, Miss Westbrook, assisted by Frank Miller. I noted that the walls had been freshened in several rooms, which brought out the various specimens to better advantage. I regret that a few windows in the attic are incongruous with the general atmosphere of the whole house.

Miss Westbrook is deserving of great credit for the fidelity and interest shown in the housing and preservation of these priceless local relics. Very truly yours,
FOSTER H. SAVILLE.

Steamer Passenger Missing

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Norfolk, Va., Jan. 19.—When the Old Dominion steamer Jefferson docked here last night H. P. Burnett, a passenger who gave his address as 140 East 33rd street, New York, was missing. A note to the purser, two letters, a bunch of keys and a few coins were found in Burnett's disordered state room. Burnett was last seen by a negro porter about 7 o'clock Thursday night.

Dance at Saugerties.
The regular weekly dance will be held Monday evening at Lasher's Hall, Saugerties. Dancing from 8 to 1. Greco Brothers' orchestra will furnish the music.

Robber Hit Mrs. Tucker

Alone At Home Friday Afternoon When Stranger Entered And Demanded Money—Refused He Knocked Her Unconscious—Saved By Her Son.

A startling story of being assaulted by an unknown man while alone in her home at No. 311 Broadway on Friday afternoon was related by Mrs. Abram Tucker to the police department about 7 o'clock that evening when Officers Fatum and Aley were hastened to the scene in response to a call for the police.

According to Mrs. Tucker's story about 4 o'clock that afternoon an unknown man of medium height and smooth shaven entered the house and inquired if Mr. Tucker was at home. "No, he is not," replied Mrs. Tucker.

The stranger then asked if there was any one home but herself and she replied there was not.

"Have you any money?" demanded the stranger who had walked into the front room followed by Mrs. Tucker.

"I have not," replied Mrs. Tucker and she started to run from the room when he grasped her by the hand and stopped her flight.

The last Mrs. Tucker said she remembered was when he hurried her to the floor and she lost consciousness.

It was at this instant that her son, Max, 13 years old, returned home from school and called to his mother as he entered the house. The stranger, hearing the boy, left the house hurriedly and jumped into an auto bearing a New Jersey license plate, and drove away.

The boy obtained the number on the car and turned it over to the police.

Finding his mother unconscious on the floor the boy rushed to the sink and obtaining some water threw it over her face, reviving her.

This was in substance the story Mrs. Tucker related to the police three hours after the assault, and when she was questioned over the telephone this noon by a Freeman reporter she told substantially the same story.

Mrs. Tucker said that the assault had left her feeling very weak and ill. In reply to questions she said she had never seen the man before and but for the timely arrival of her son from school he would undoubtedly have robbed the house while she lay unconscious on the floor.

Asked if there was anything missing from the home she replied that there was not.

Owing to the fact that the assault as related by Mrs. Tucker had occurred at 4 o'clock that afternoon and was not reported to the police until 7 o'clock that evening the stranger was able to leave town unidentified. The police department will take up with the New Jersey authorities the question of the license number on the car and ascertain the owner of the automobile.

WON'T LET DE VALERA OUT OF JAIL TO TESTIFY

Free State Says American Donors Can Quiz Him Behind Bars.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Dublin, Jan. 19.—Eamonn De Valera and Austin Stack, Irish republican leaders, were absent today when an inquiry was begun at the office of American Consul Hathaway into the disposition of funds contributed to the Sinn Fein by American John Finerty, an American lawyer, came to Dublin on behalf of American contributors.

Attorney Cannon, representing the Irish Free State, said the government would not produce De Valera and Stack at the consulate, but was willing they should testify at Arbor Hill barracks.

De Valera's counsel was dissatisfied with this arrangement and the session adjourned after thirty minutes.

INTERLOCUTORY DECREE FOR MARY COSTELLO

She Has Seven Children, Five Being Minors.

An interlocutory decree of divorce has been granted plaintiff in the action brought by Mary Costello against Charles Costello, by Justice G. D. B. Hasbrouck in supreme court. The parties were married in this city in 1900, and the issue of the marriage is seven children, five being minors who were given in charge of the plaintiff. Harry E. Schirick is attorney for the plaintiff; Frank W. Brooks of counsel. It is alleged in the complaint that defendant has been living with another woman since 1918 and that efforts to locate him to serve notice of the action were unsuccessful and that notice of the divorce action was given by publication.

Try to Avert English Strike

Locomotive Engineers Due to go Out Sunday—Baldwin Makes no Move for Government—Laborite Members Striving for Settlement.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
London, Jan. 19.—A supreme effort was made today to avert the general strike of railway locomotive engineers called for tomorrow.

Railway union leaders conferred with representatives of the companies, seeking a preliminary basis upon which further discussions could be based.

There was no session of parliament today so the Laborite members of Commons had plenty of time to work for a last minute settlement.

Hope of government intervention dwindled when Premier Stanley Baldwin departed for Chequers Court—the official country seat of the premier—to spend the week end.

The trades union council is continuing its sessions, without much hope of adding the warring factions to its ranks.

There was a heavy movement of freight and passenger traffic. Travelers hastened towards their homes, fearing to be marooned if they remained until the strike went into effect.

Foodstuff and perishable goods were moved at passenger train speed to their destinations. Plans are being made to use airplanes and motor busses if railway traffic is brought to a standstill.

MAN GRABS DOLLAR BILL FROM NEWSBOY

A case of banditry on a petit larceny scale was pulled off this morning about 10 o'clock on Wall street, in front of the Advance building when a large man stole a one dollar bill from a small boy, Arthur Burns, Jr., a Daily Freeman carrier, who was on his way to the uptown office of The Freeman to turn in his collections for the week, had a dollar bill in his hand when a man came along and following out an old saying "that opportunity makes rogues," grabbed the dollar from the boy's hand and walked off. The youngster naturally asked the thief to give him the money back but the fellow walked on toward Main street.

PUBLIC INSTALLATION OF DE MOLAY OFFICERS

On Monday evening, January 21, there will be public installation of the officers of Colonial Chapter, Order of De Molay, for boys, in the rooms of Kingston Lodge, No. 10, F. and A. M., at 280 Wall street. Each of the members of the order is requested to invite his mother and father to witness the installation. Also, each of the candidates whose petition is in the Chapter but who has not yet received the degrees is invited together with his mother and father to come to the installation. The installation ceremonies are to commence at 7:30 o'clock. After the closing refreshments will be served.

BEAUVAIS SUES MRS. STILLMAN FOR $7,621

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Montreal, Jan. 19.—Fred Beauvais, Indian guide who was named co-respondent in the famous Stillman divorce suit, today filed suit against Mrs. James A. Stillman for $7,621. He claims the amount is due him for money spent in defending Mrs. Stillman from the charges made by her husband naming the guide as the father of Baby Guy Stillman.

The suit places the total amount of the claim at $8,416 and acknowledges payment of $1,158 from Mrs. Stillman's lawyers. To the balance of $7,258 is added $362 interest.

TWO ACQUITTED IN HARNESS GOUGE TRIALS

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Parkersburg, W. Va., Jan. 19.—John C. Skinner, chief of the General Sales Division of the War Department during the war and Captain Earl R. Estes, of Atlanta, Georgia, head of the sales department of the United States Harness Company of Ransom, W. Va., two of the seven defendants in the government's conspiracy case against the harness company officials were acquitted today after Presiding Judge E. Lawrence Groner directed a verdict of not guilty.

MERRITT'S POND AFFORDS BEST SKATING HEREABOUTS

Probably the best pond for skating in this vicinity at the present time is Merritt's Pond on Lucas avenue, beyond Forsyth Park. While there has been good skating on the flats at Kingston Point the ebb and flow of the tide has made the ice very bumpy. Owing to the unusually warm weather that has prevailed so far this winter there has been but little good skating.

Entertainment in Trinity Church.

The Ladies' Aid Society of Trinity M. E. Church will give an entertainment entitled "Commencement Exercises of the Pokenville Ladies' Seminary" on Wednesday evening, January 30. The many expressions of approval of the entertainment, "A Regimen of Two," given about a year ago have encouraged the ladies to try again. Mrs. William H. Moser will again direct the cast and an equally enjoyable entertainment is promised.

RONK, LEADING WITNESS IN GRAHAM INQUEST, FLATLY CONTRADICTED

Miss McMullen and His Sister Deny He Was With Former at Home of Latter in Newburgh Night Killing is Believed to Have Taken Place—Had Counted Graham's Roll.

Two more witnesses were examined before Coroner Sutor Friday afternoon in the investigation which is being conducted here to determine who is responsible for the death of Richard Graham, who was murdered last November at Marlborough, in a creek which flows through the "sucker hole" back of the village. A razor had been used to cut Graham's throat, his clothing had been stripped from his body by the murderers and the body had evidently been thrown in the creek with the hope that it would float into the Hudson river, where it found. It would be impossible to identify it on account of lack of clothing and other distinguishing marks.

James Ronk, a bartender at the McMullen Hotel at Marlborough, who was examined before the coroner some time ago, testified among other things that he had seen Graham about the time of his death in the hotel and he had tendered a twenty dollar bill in payment for a drink. Graham requested Ronk to count his roll and there was about $120 in the roll. When the body was found no money was discovered, showing that robbery was the motive of the crime. Ronk said he told no one of the money which Graham had in his possession. Graham was murdered only a day or two before the body was found. Ronk when examined before the coroner said he was in Newburgh the night the murder probably took place with Miss McMullen and that he had called at the home of his sister, Miss McMullen, who was in Newburgh with Ronk and again Friday on the stand swore she was not in Newburgh shopping with Ronk that night. His sister, Mrs. Coy, also testified that he was not at her house the night he says he was there but was at the house about two or three weeks prior to the murder and again the next week after the finding of the body.

Ronk was unable to attend the hearing before the coroner Friday and a doctor's certificate signed by Dr. C. H. Wilson on December 27 was received by mail. The certificate stated that Ronk was unable to attend any hearing as he was unable at that time to travel on a train, automobile or venture any journey on account of his health. Ronk was in Marlborough a few days ago but left and was not home Friday.

Mary Coy, a sister of Ronk, was the first witness called. She said her brother had not been at her house, 105 Lake street, Newburgh, for some time until the week following the finding of the body. She was positive of that as she had read of the murder in the Newburgh News prior to the time he came to the house. He came the week of November 5. It was a Friday afternoon when he came so the date must have been November 9. He came about 4 or 5 o'clock in the afternoon and said he was going to stay a few days to rest up. He returned home and came back again Saturday and stayed until the following Thursday.

It was two or three weeks prior to that time when he had last been there. She said she had read the statement in the paper that Ronk said he had been at her house a day or two before the finding of the body but this statement it made by him was not true she was positive; it was after the finding of the body. Ronk said nothing about the murder when he came to the house.

Mrs. Coy said she was friendly with her brother and that he was mistaken when he said he was at the house just prior to the finding of the body. She said that he had been at her house with Miss McMullen as he testified he had been. It positively was not the week of the murder that he was in Newburgh but on November 9, a Friday.

Miss Grace McMullen, who resides at Marlborough, said she knew James Ronk and that he had worked at the McMullen Hotel at times as a bartender. Months prior to last November, she said, she had been at Newburgh with a party and Ronk was along. She heard of the murder the day the body was found. She did not know Graham.

The night prior to the finding of the body when Ronk said he was in Newburgh with Miss McMullen and they came home on the bus, she said she was not away from home. She was in the house all evening and positively had not gone to Newburgh with Ronk. As soon as she saw the statement in the paper that Ronk said he had been in Newburgh she had it denied. She did not see Ronk on Thursday night. She did not know if Graham had been in the hotel. She denied Ronk's statement that she had gone shopping with him at the Mohican store in Newburgh and said she had not been at Mrs. Coy's.

Both of the witnesses sworn Friday before Coroner Sutor and examined by Assistant District Attorney Murray knew nothing of the actual murder or the surroundings but were examined to verify or contradict the statements made by Ronk when he was examined before the coroner at a hearing several weeks ago. The result was that both wit-

Trotzky Fights for His Job

Expected to be Ousted as Leader of Red Army on Charges of Stirring up Factional Strife—Is Ill, Also.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Moscow, Jan. 19.—With his indomitable fighting spirit weakened by sickness Leon Trotsky, commissar for war in the Soviet government and one of the most spectacular figures of the Red revolution, struggled today to retain his place as head of the Red army.

Trotsky's official life was hanging by a slender thread, following a resolution aimed at him by the Federal Communist conference which adjourned last night.

Trotsky is accused of stirring up factional strife in the Communist party and attempting to inculcate in Russian youth principles antagonistic to tenets of the Communists.

Trotsky has been granted two months leave of absence on account of ill health and it is generally believed he will never get to his old post.

So far as known Lenin is not playing an active part in the party strife owing to his own ill health.

Leaders of the "Stand Patners" in the Communist party have made a series of recommendations to offset the work of the insurgents led by Trotsky. They suggest the immediate recruiting of 100,000 new Communists from the working classes, fresh disciplinary measures to prevent future "party outbreaks" and a system of education among the younger Communists to instill in them the teachings of Lenin.

It is revealed for the first time that a proposal by Lenin, adopted secretly in 1921, empowers two thirds of the central executive committee to expel from the Communist party any member of the committee violating party discipline or arousing factionalism.

H. T. O. F. Drive Netted $166.28

At a supper Friday evening at the Y. M. C. A., the final reports of the H. T. O. F. campaign were handed in, which were as follows:

Team 1, Captain Ronk, boys donated, $5.50; public, $21.45; total, $27.95.
Team 2, Captain Stumpf, boys donated, $0.50; public, $12.93; total, $13.43.
Team 3, Captain Slater, boys donated, $4; public, $15.20; total, $19.20.
Team 4, Captain Williams, boys donated, $6; public, $27.05; total, $33.05.
Team 5, Captain Smith, boys donated, $6; public, $12.76; total, $18.76.
Team 6, Captain Hyatt, boys donated, $5.50; public, $11.81; total, $17.31.
Team 7, Captain Longyear, boys donated, $6; public, $1.53; total, $7.53.

The boys holding membership in the Y. M. C. A. not members of the team donated $26.89, making a total for the boys' subscriptions, $60.49. The total donated by the public was $105.79, which makes a grand total of $166.28.

W. J. Burger, state Y. M. C. A. boys' secretary, was present and gave an address in which he thanked the boys for the state's share of the fund collected, which is 40 per cent.

Fred Van Deusen was also present and after the final reports were read entertained the boys with "magic."

Elmendorf Street Church.

The organ has been put into fine condition for special musical features, and several extra numbers will be played by Mrs. Cady at the Sunday vesper service. A violin solo, "The Lost Chord," by Kendall Zelliff, will add much to the service. Mrs. Wood and Miss Linkletter will sing, "God is Love." The service begins at five and closes at six.

Ellenville Team Won.

The Ellenville Wanderers trimmed the Monroe quintet at Norbury hall, Ellenville, Wednesday evening, score 75 to 25. The Yale and Towne team from Connecticut will be the opposition at Ellenville on Friday evening, January 25.

Newsies denied that Ronk had been at the Coy residence, his sister denied he was in Newburgh and Miss McMullen denied that she was with him in Newburgh.

Ronk testified that on his return to Marlborough while he was proceeding from the bus to his home he met a stranger who asked him for money. This stranger has never been identified and no one else saw him that night.

An adjournment was taken until January 29, at 2 o'clock, when the hearing will be continued.

THE LUCKY CAT

"Me-ow, me-ow," said the pussy cat, "I am, indeed, a lucky cat."

"Me-ow, me-ow," said the second pussy cat, "I love to hear about cat luck."

"The other day," said the first cat, "I had had a very trying day. You know how some days will be more trying than others?"

"Yes," said the second cat, "I understand."

"Why, some days," the second cat continued, "after a few minutes,"

"Oh, so dull."

"I have no end of trying, nerve-racking things to put up with."

"Yesterday, for example, I was chased for quite a few blocks and I couldn't find any place in which to hide for the longest time."

"It was very annoying."

"And the other day I had no luck at all in finding food. The garbage bins were so full, oh, so full. And that was very hard on my poor nerves."

"Oh, yes, pussy, indeed I do know what a trying, trying day means."

"Well," said the first cat, "as I said I had had a trying day. I had eaten, but not of the best."

"I had caught a mouse but it had been hard work and somehow I was annoyed with myself at being so slow. I was fearful lest I might be growing old."

"But I was made quite happy and encouraged again by the kindness of a little girl named Edith."

"Edith was having tea. Edith is a great person for tea. I could tell that from the conversation I overheard."

"She was telling every one that she loved cambric tea and that she loved to have a tea party."

"She said it was the kind of a party which really interested her because there was always toast and jam at tea—at least there usually was toast and jam at tea and she was very fond of toast and jam."

"Then there were cookies and cake at the tea, too. Well, I was surprised when I looked at Edith and saw she was not a big fat person."

"No, she was what people called slender. And she was very graceful and moved about most beautifully. I tried to copy her as I walked along the window ledge outside of the city apartment where she lived."

"Yes, I tried to move in just the same graceful fashion. You will wonder how I know her name? I heard her other little friends who were there calling her Edith."

"And she answered to that name every time."

"Her name must have been Edith, then," said the second cat.

"Pray go on with your story. I did not mean to interrupt."

"Well," the first cat continued, "I was walking about as prettily as I could, putting my paws down just so and moving my body just so when I heard Edith say:

"Come pussy, come pussy, come pussy."

"I thought, of course, she had a cat in the apartment and I said to myself:

"A cat doesn't know the excitement and hardships of a life such as I lead."

"But it seems she did not have a cat. I discovered that in a short time."

"She really was talking to me, for in no time at all she was at the window and I heard her say:

"Come pussy, come pussy."

"Slowly I made my way toward her. I did not want her to think I was beside myself with joy at her attention. I did not want her to think that it was the first time I had been noticed in just such a way."

"So I did not appear hurried, nor did I appear flustered. My fur remained smooth and unrumpled—that is, it remained as smooth and unrumpled as it was; it is never exactly perfect."

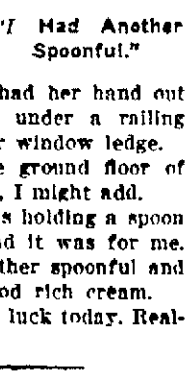

"I had another spoonful."

"And as I made my way toward her I saw that she had her hand out of the window and under a railing which was along her window ledge."

"She lived on the ground floor of the apartment house, I might add."

"And there she was holding a spoon filled with cream and it was for me. And then I had another spoonful and yet another with good rich cream."

"Ah, yes, I had cat luck today. Really real cat luck!"

HOT BREADS FOR COOL DAYS

Hot breads served occasionally are always enjoyed, especially on cold, wintry days.

Rye Popovers.

—Mix and sift two-thirds of a cupful of rye meal, one-third cupful of flour, one-fourth (ten spoonful of salt.

Add gradually one cupful of milk, one teaspoonful of baking powder or one-half teaspoonful of soda, if sour milk is used, two beaten eggs and one teaspoonful of butter. Turn into very hot iron gem pans and bake in a hot oven about one-half hour.

Cream Delights.—Mix and sift one and one-half cupfuls of good pastry flour with one teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of baking powder. Add very slowly enough thick cream to make a dough soft enough to roll out. Pat and roll as thin as possible. Shape with a cutter, prick with a fork and bake in a moderate oven. Serve with salad.

Currant Nut Muffins.—Mix two tablespoonfuls of sugar with three tablespoonfuls of melted butter, one well-beaten egg, and two cupfuls of sifted flour with three teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Add one-fourth cupful each of dried currants and nut meats, one cupful of milk and beat well. Drop into greased muffin pans and bake one-half hour in a moderate oven.

Rice Muffins.—Mix and sift two cupfuls of flour with three teaspoonfuls of baking powder and one tablespoonful of sugar. Work in one cupful of cooked rice—the brown variety is best—add one well-beaten egg, two tablespoonfuls of melted butter. Beat well and bake in hot greased gem pans for one-half hour in a quick oven.

Drop Doughnuts.—Take one and one-half cupfuls of flour sifted with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, a pinch of ginger and a grating of lemon rind for flavor; add one beaten egg and one-half cupful of milk; add a pinch of salt, mix well and drop by teaspoonfuls into hot fat. Roll in sugar and serve warm.

Kingston Post Installation

State Commander Officers—County Legion and G. A. R. Delegations Present—Membership Increasing—Minstrel Show Planned.

Kingston Post, No. 150, American Legion, held one of the biggest meetings in history at the armory last evening when past state commander, the Hon. Albert B. Callan of Durham, installed the newly elected officers. The officers and delegations from the other Ulster county posts at Saugerties, New Paltz, Ellenville and Highland were present.

The meeting was opened with prayer by Chaplain Wilson of New Paltz in the absence of Chaplain Anderson of Kingston Post. The officers were then installed by Mr. Callan.

Ten members of Pratt Post, No. 127, Grand Army of the Republic, were present at the installation and remained to the business meeting on invitation. A report of 124 paid up members for 1924 was read and new members are coming in daily. The membership of the local post at this time is slightly ahead of the same time last year. This is the first year since the organization that there has been an increase in the membership over the year previous and indicates a prosperous year in local legion circles.

The post went on record as inviting the reunion of the 51st Pioneer Infantry to be held in Kingston at some future date. Many of the local boys were members of the 51st Pioneers.

Plans were also made to hold a minstrel show in the Kingston Opera House on the evening of April 28, 29 and 30. Harry Maisenhelder will direct the minstrel show. Manager George Weck has agreed to put on an exhibition game of basketball for the benefit of the legion at the close of the present season.

Major Everett, commander of Pratt Post, No. 127, G. A. R., spoke to the legion members following the business meeting, telling interesting experiences of the Civil War. He drank a past commander and Elias Nichols, adjutant of Pratt Post, also spoke briefly.

John J. Finerty, principal of Public School No. 1 and a member of Kingston Post, was appointed chairman of the Americanism committee of Kingston Post. This is the first time the organization of the Post that an Americanism committee has been appointed.

The work of this committee is to take charge of the annual national week contest, American Education Week, literacy law for new voters, respect for the flag, our national anthem, cooperation of public schools, growth of lawlessness, immigration, disloyalty, world peace, promote naturalization, help on patriotic occasions, promote patriotism in all ways, assist in upholding law and order, promote the development of strength, manliness and loyalty in young men. Also to promote education for adults, especially for illiterate and non-English-speaking persons, encourage education and training among ex-service men, help to improve the condition and opportunities of the immigrant aliens in the community, help the immigrant to know and love America, stimulate community co-operation for community betterment, encourage adequate preparation for national defense, oppose anti-American tendencies in the community, assist adult aliens in applying for naturalization and co-operate with local public school authorities in planning a week of Thanksgiving Day in November the aim of which is to bring the schools and parents closer together and to win a more widespread support for public education.

At the close of the business meeting a social time was enjoyed.

American Opossum Is Used to Trim This Coat

This very dressy coat of tan velours is effectively trimmed with American opossum, one of the popular furs so much in evidence.

Pompons May Be Used in Many Winsome Ways

Pompons, large or small, play an important part in the wardrobe of every well-dressed woman and in the interior decoration scheme. On baby's caps, on capes, scarves, pillows, curtains, they are irresistible and as a trimming for hats they are used this season with most happy effects.

To make pompons take two circles of cardboard slightly larger in diameter than the finished pompon is to be. Cut a generous hole from the centers to allow enough yarn to be caught through. Place the cardboard circles together and take a short length of the yarn, doubled for strength, to hold the pompon when finished. Stretch it between the cardboard circles, letting the ends hang over both existing places. Take a large-eyed long needle, thread with a generous double length of the yarn and begin to cover the circles by putting the needle in the center cutout, across the bottom of the circles, over the top, down through the center cutout and so on, completely hiding the cardboard. Continue to cover until the hole in the center is no larger than the needle will no longer pass through. Pompons require plenty of yarn for effectiveness. Tie the short strands of yarn that lie between the cardboard as tightly as possible. Cut the worsted yarn on the outside edges of the circles, take away the cardboards, tighten the yarn that holds the pompon in place. Fluff the pompon to make a ball and trim any unevenness, taking care not to spoil the shape of the finished pompon. The more worsted yarn used the fluffier and more beautiful the results will be. Strawberries and other fruits made of yarn are made in the same way, trimming the complete ball to the shape of the fruits desired.

Late Notes on Shoes That Interest Women

Brown satin slippers are much worn with evening gowns. Some of the shops are showing adorable little slippers that are unadorned save for small straps of the satin.

There is some attempt to bring back the high shoe. The attempt is made with a fawn and gray shoe as vehicle, the fawn being snakeskin and the gray lizard.

The satin shoe for afternoon wear is becoming as popular as the universal suede. So far, however, its correct use is limited to formal occasions.

The step-in shoe, which has no fastening but merely elastic gorings, is enjoying quite a vogue. In a gray suede, it occasionally has silk elastic gorings and patent leather pipings of sericit.

There is no ornament of any kind, not even stitcheary patterns, on one type of new shoes now on exhibit. These shoes depend for their effect on a glove-fitting design and on three or four narrow straps.

Hand-Knit Golf Hose One Popular Fashion

Hand-knit golf hose with design are now to the fore. Matching the designs of the sweater, scarf, hat and hose gives a certain uniformity that adds chic and smartness where a lack of uniformity in design distracts the eye and leaves the whole rather a confusion than an attractive, uniform scheme, which the well-dressed woman desires. Where hand-knit goods are sold, the golf hose bring large prices, but the woman or girl who is clever with her knitting needles can choose her own individual design and color combination and save money as well.

Ocean Bed Rising.
A cable ship searching for a broken cable between St. Helena and Cape Town found that the ocean bed had risen two and a quarter miles since 1809. When the original soundings were taken in that year the chart showed a depth of three miles.

City Hall Tower Needs Repairs

Moore Brothers, Local Steeplejacks, Inspected Roof And Tower—Roof Is Badly In Need Of Repairs—Tower Said To Be Dangerous.

Although the roof of the city hall has been in need of repairs for a year or so nothing definite has ever been done to it. It is expected that the matter of a new roof will come up at the next meeting of the common council. The leaky roof has been reported from time to time, and while slight repairs were made it is said that the building needs an entire new roof.

Moore Brothers, the local steeplejacks, who have been inspecting the roof and the city hall tower at the request of the building committee of the common council, have found that the tower is also badly in need of repairs. In its present condition it is said to be dangerous, and liable to cause considerable damage in a heavy wind storm.

Coal in Siberia.

The presence of coal in eastern Siberia has been known for many years, and since the construction of the first railways through that region lignite and soft coal mines convenient to transportation have been worked. The total known deposits on the mainland contain some 625,000,000 tons, part of which is hard coal.

ACTS

Youth and Age.

Youth needs but to hear a new tune twice to know it by heart. Elderly folks have to hear it 20 times to merely identify it by its name.

Capital Punishment With Sword.

Execution by the sword still exists for capital punishment in one or two German states.

Sea-Water Gold Unprofitable.

Average amount of gold in sea water is one ounce to 31,000 tons of water, but as it is in the "colloidal" state, the cost of production is about twenty times the market price of the metal.

Precaution.

Store Detective—"I'm suspicious of that woman; she seems furtive." Floor-walker—"Well, keep your eyes on the furs."—Boston Transcript.

Stick to the Old.

Don't give up the old scheme that works, in a way, for "a better one" that won't work at all.

The Real Post.

It is said that no real poet can exist without the spirit being on fire, and without, as it were, a spice of madness.

Water Breaks Concrete.

Concrete can be broken up by use of water in a special tool under three to five tons per square inch pressure.

Moslems Detest Bells.

Bells are never used in Mohammedan mosques. The Moslem race detests bells, under the delusion that they cause the assemblage of evil spirits.

Quite Different.

Many a man who walks miles to reach the eighteenth hole had a grandfather who covered the same distance going to a country church.

How Men Judge.

Men usually judge of the prudence of a plan by the result, and are very apt to say that the successful man has had much forethought, and the unsuccessful has shown great want of it.

Quits So.

Popular songs would be less objectionable if sung only in the hearing of those with whom they are popular.

THE MAN OR THE DOLLAR?

A year or so before the United States entered the World War, Hoke Smith, then U. S. Senator from Georgia, made more noise than the two pigs under a gate because the British were holding up boats loaded with American cotton destined for the German Army. But when his ears were assailed with tales of Lusitanian horrors, he was as silent as a rabbit under a brush heap. This finally provoked Senator Lodge into exclaiming that "The body of an innocent child floating dead on the water, the victim of the destruction of an unarmed vessel, is to me a more poignant and a more tragic spectacle than an unsold bale of cotton."

The argument most frequently used by proponents of Russian recognition is that it would be good business. "If there is a sound basis in custom for recognizing the Soviet Government, there are even more compelling economic reasons for doing so," says the New York Journal of Commerce, which says European countries are "seriously contemplating recognition of the Soviet Government as a means to the expansion of their markets." "Principles be hanged, it's dollars we're after" might be called the slogan of the Journal, which advocates unrestricted immigration as a means for reaping larger profits, regardless of the effect on the body politic. The Senatorial spokesman for Russian recognition declares that "recognition of the present Russian Government would constitute neither approval of its policy nor of the character of the men forming it. Such action would mean simply that we realize it is the only governing power in Russia, and if we are to deal at all with that great nation it must be through its Government."

The men of high character can not afford to deal with the yeggman and sandbagger on terms of equality. The yeggman does not gain anything by the association, except a better chance to ply his trade, and the good citizen certainly loses. You can't hook up vice and virtue and drive them tandem without getting off the safe road. In the eyes of international law the Soviet Government is a vicious thing. If our standards of honesty, morality and decency are all wrong, we must be shown before we will hold a petting party with a Government which denies God, flouts marriage and refuses to recognize the obligation of contract. Business may be business, but, like Senator Lodge, the majority will continue to hold the man above the dollar, and the nation above trade.

THE MANY-SIDED FRANKLIN.

Referring to the wide observance of Benjamin Franklin's birthday January 17, the Philadelphia Record of January 11, noted that even New York, which never had any particular connection with Franklin, was "preparing to outdo itself in tributes to the distinguished and versatile Philadelphia, whose virtues will be sung by bankers, business men, publishers, printers, electrical engineers, librarians and scientists." The Record added: "Because of his many-sidedness Franklin was the most interesting character America has ever produced. He has not the moral greatness of Washington or Lincoln, but in many other ways he is far superior to them in his appeal to the average man. In many ways (and because of his astonishing versatility) he was America personified."

Benjamin Franklin was indeed versatile and many-sided. He was a man of all times, yet a man of his own times, and therefore he did not hesitate to turn a pretty penny in ways now outlawed but legal and altogether respectable in his own day. For example, in "The Many-Sided Franklin," pp. 319-321, Paul Leicester Ford shows that the subject of his biography "made many a venture in the purchase and sale of negroes," and announced to the readers of his newspaper, the Pennsylvania Gazette, published in Philadelphia, that by inquiring "of the Printer hereof" they could secure a "Likely Young Negroe Wench," a "Likely Mulatto Girl," a "Likely Young Negroe Fellow," a "Lusty Young Ne-groo Woman," etc., etc. Already in England and even in America there may have been feeble stirrings of the later powerful anti-slavery movement, but it was enough for Franklin, the philosopher, that the institution was legal and generally accepted as perfectly proper.

The story of the visit to the White House of Koppel Bier of Hoboken, aged 191, who was until recently a Democrat, recalls the account in Mrs. John Drew's reminiscences of her choice of political party affiliations in America. The English-born actress was playing in Washington. President Jackson was greatly pleased with her work on the stage and invited her to the White House. "Needless to say," frankly wrote Mrs. Drew, "I have been a Democrat ever since."

That Body of Yours

THE CHILD BELOW PAIR.

I had the privilege of examining the boys of a reformatory school a couple of years ago.

They ranged in age from ten to eighteen years.

As I looked them over there were some well built boys in the group, but not very many.

I had not gone over many of the boys before I found an unusual number of physical defects, such as a school examiner finds in any city school—that is in regard to teeth, throat, and eyes.

However, the outstanding thing was their height, weight, and chest development. They were much below par in these points.

I went into the matter of the family history of the boys with one of the officials of the school.

From him I learned that many of the boys came from homes where one of the parents was missing.

This might be due to the death of that parent, but more frequently due to dissensions and quarrels between the parents.

I asked the official which was more frequently to blame, the mother or the father. "Well," he said, "I used to think it was the father, but the more I investigated matters, the more I believe that it is fifty fifty, or equally divided between mothers and fathers."

Now I learned from the boys and likewise from this official that the parents of certain boys of poor physique, were themselves of good physique.

What is my point.
That gives good surroundings, good food, and regular hours, children will usually resemble their parents in build.

But with a household upset by domestic troubles, where the children go to school when they like, are on the street, or at the movies day and night, where well cooked nourishing food is an unknown or rare thing, these children show it in their bodies.

And the unfortunate thing about it all is that it occurs just when they need good food, proper hours, to say nothing about discipline.

This school was doing good work considering its inadequate equipment. But I just wondered if as citizens we realize how much was being done for the next generation by pastors, priests, and social workers, who toil so hard and so patiently to keep husband and wife, father and mother together in the home.

Their work will show in the bodies of the children, to say nothing of their moral and spiritual development.

HEAVY LANDSLIDE ON CATSKILL MOUNTAIN TRAIL.

A heavy landslide occurred during the noon hour on Thursday on the state road between Shandaken and Big Indian, which completely covered the highway and stopped all through traffic, which was diverted by way of Prattsville, Lexington and Bushnellville.

The slide occurred near Donohue's place, between Shandaken and the highway leading from the main station, Hogeboom & Campbell of this city have been engaged during the winter in erecting a retaining wall along the mountain side of the state road, which is bordered closely on the opposite side by the Esopus creek.

The contractors have been using two steam shovels in digging out the bank, which extends along the highway for a considerable distance, and one of the shovels was almost buried by the tons of rock and earth which were precipitated on the highway. Fortunately the workmen employed by the contractors were at dinner at the time of the slide.

Without frost in the ground, three inches of rainfall during Wednesday night's storm found plenty of opportunity to loosen the soil and rocks on the mountainside.

It was expected by the contractors that the highway would be cleared by Friday night.

Wawarsing Lodge, F. & A. M., will confer the first degree on Wednesday evening, January 23.

At a meeting held last Saturday evening the board of directors of the Veterans' Memorial Hospital accepted plans for the remodeling of the building as submitted by Architect Robert R. Graham. General tentative plans had been submitted and changes made each time until those in charge now feel that the present plans offer the best solution. Many doctors and others who are acquainted with hospital needs have been consulted in the drawing of the plans. Architect Graham has some minor detail work on plans which when completed will result in the commencement of the alteration work, which will be rushed to completion.

THE TWO-PIECE EFFECT PERSISTS.

(By Eleanor Gunn.)

It would be worse than foolish to deny the reentry of the two-piece costume and its subsequent importance when the days' come for the winter coat to be laid aside in favor of the cloth suit.

Women have shown a preference for coats which almost give the effect of being in two sections and for suits, even when they are worn under a fur coat.

The models sketched are indicative of the mode as seen about smart New York tea rooms, the cape back and abbreviated straight coat, both having many devotees. In this case, a broadtail fabric is used collared with black fox for the model and black broadcloth for the other, with a boyish collar of ermine.

The repeated showings given the three-quarter coat with flared outline, make it one of the salient coat types of the current and future mode. In many collections it is projected as the principal new idea in silhouettes, expressed in both dress and sports models. While the wrapped version is shown, the conventional buttoned closing is also offered in the light of a new expression.

The growing popularity of costume effects is more and more evident. Every collection includes an agreeable number of scarf frocks, cape dresses and models with accompanying coats.

The various scarf treatments seem endless, but whether attached or detached or handled in a broad ribbon effect or as a kerchief, they play an important part. They are an interesting means of introducing color contrast and, in many instances, decide the character of the dress.

Straightline frocks with plush scarfs have pockets that make them highly useful. Other scarfs spread in fan effect at the end, and others made in supple fabrics may be used to form high collars.

The cape attached to the dress has even been exploited for evening wear, and usually is lengthened several inches, so that it drops in a long, sweeping line and gives the stately grace of a toga. Street frocks and sports models alike give a more military bearing to the tiny cape, and most of these terminate at the waistline.

Dance frocks of lighter fabrics or completed with lower-like capes, either finely pleated or scalloped, and often made of many layers of blended colors.

Parsnip Has Double Growth.

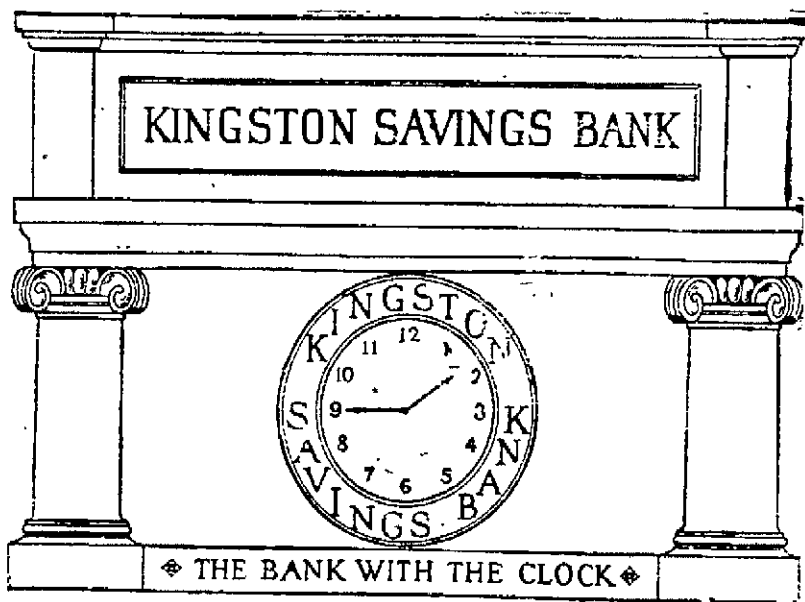

A parsnip which extended its growth through the neck of a bottle, is among the garden freaks of the year. This unusual growth is reported from Ryde, Isle of Wight, and it was a healthy specimen when displayed. It resembles a double parsnip in that from the surface down the parsnip grew to good proportions, then pointed a course through the neck of a broken bottle and again grew to fair proportions on the other side of the temporary obstruction.

Rickenbacker

A • CAR • WORTHY • OF • ITS • NAME

Remember— Rickenbacker Told You So!

Just so you will fix the fact in your own mind for future reference and guidance;

—so you will, in the future, value Rickenbacker's advice at its true worth, and heed our timely warnings;

—so you will, in short, come to realize that Rickenbacker engineering is as sound as it is progressive;

—and finally, so you will know that in selecting a Rickenbacker you are always getting a car that is at least a year in advance of the rank and file of cars in engineering improvements, in body styles, finish and appointments;

—to the end that your annual depreciation will be the minimum, and resale value of your car the maximum;

We are constrained to remind you that just six months ago, (July 1st, to be exact), Rickenbacker proclaimed to the world that, within a year, 4-Wheel Brakes would be universal.

Several makers openly took issue with us.

Not only was every effort made to discredit our assertion and discount the superiority of 4-Wheel Brakes, but to prove that Rickenbacker was wrong both in pioneering this great improvement, and in taking such a definite stand on the subject.

We were certain, however, that future events would prove the accuracy of our assertion.

We knew we were right—and feared not to go ahead.

Only six months later—January 5th to 12th—the New York Automobile Show was a sensational vindication of the Rickenbacker policy.

In almost every exhibit in that great show was an endorsement of Rickenbacker judgment—frank recognition of Rickenbacker leadership.

The evidence was so conclusive as to leave no room for doubt—4-Wheel Brakes have conquered apathetic prejudice and active opposition.

Not only have they proven necessary, but actually indispensable for safe driving in present-day traffic conditions.

Informed buyers now insist—and will continue more than ever to insist—that all four wheels be equipped with first-class brakes.

Eventually this insistence will be for fully enclosed, internal expanding brakes, too.

33—over 50%—makers exhibited cars in which 4-Wheel Brakes were an outstanding feature.

This was in response to insistent demands of buyers as expressed through salesmen and dealers.

The buyer, having once experienced the greater safety and efficiency of this fundamental improvement, said "I want that!"

And when an American buyer demands, the maker has no option—he must comply.

Today, the buyer is repeating those words so often and so emphatically, every maker must accede—or pay the penalty.

"Has this car 4-Wheel Brakes?"

That was the first question you heard when you stopped at any exhibit in the Auto Show.

And the next question generally was, "Are they internal expanding brakes mechanically operated?"

But, several other innovations and improvements that were emphasized by several makers as new in this show—but which you saw in the first Rickenbacker Six—also indicated the impress of this product on the entire industry.

12 Cars now boast "vibrationless motors." And it is interesting to note the several expedients applied in efforts to emulate the results of Rickenbacker's "Tandem Fly Wheel."

9 Cars emphasized "deeper frames"—though none as yet, approaches the eight (8") inch dimensions of the Rickenbacker "Double Depth" frame.

6 Cars showed springs set nearer the ends of the rear axle—nearer the point of contact between tire and road. This is one of the features of Rickenbacker "Cradle" spring suspension.

There are several other points, however, that are still to be found only in this car.

6 Cars have "Air Cleaners" of one kind or another—in emulation of Rickenbacker's provision for "protecting the lungs of the motor."

Fully 75% of all makers now feature steel disc wheels—first announced as standard on the first Rickenbacker Six.

5 Cars feature ball bearings in steering spindles—all of these are much higher priced cars than Rickenbacker, by the way.

5 Cars show the commutator located above motor, away from dirt, water and oil. This also you first saw in the Rickenbacker Six.

And yet—while "imitation is the sincerest form of flattery," and we heartily acknowledge the implied compliment—

We cannot but derive still more satisfaction from the fact that, while each of several have emulated Rickenbacker in one or two features, none so far, has combined all those superiorities in one product as you find them in the Rickenbacker Six.

Of course, everyone looked to this exhibit to sound the keynote for the new year.

Nor was any disappointed.

Rickenbacker ran true to form by setting a new standard of values with several refinements and the unprecedented equipment at the new price.

When you had visited this exhibit, the term "fully equipped" had acquired a new meaning.

For Rickenbacker showed, for the first time in the world's history, standard models at standard prices, so completely equipped as to leave the new owner "Nothing Else to Buy."

Rickenbacker models this year are equipped with all those safety devices and conveniences which the seasoned motorist considers essential, and for which, heretofore, you have paid extra.

Not only the customary speedometer, ammeter, voltmeter, pilot light, oil gauge and switch-lock on the instrument board;

But also transmission lock, Folberth wind-shield cleaner, combination vanity and smoking case, motor meter, motor meter wings, motor meter lock, shock absorbers and bumpers, both front and rear.

The open models—Sport Phaeton and Sport Roadster—also have beveled plate-glass wind wings.

All models are equipped with drum tire-covers with lettered warning "4-Wheel Brakes," which is for the benefit of the man behind, and which never fails to give the Rickenbacker man right of way. This is Rickenbacker's interpretation of the term "fully equipped" as exemplified in these latest models.

Here is established not only a new standard of values, but a new code of business ethics.

For the first time, you saw an automobile in which the customer's needs and desires were considered paramount.

This is another Rickenbacker departure from former rules that will revolutionize sales practice.

"Nothing Else to Buy" is today the exclusive slogan of the Rickenbacker salesman—even as "4-Wheel Brakes" was his clarion cry six months ago.

Buyers will no longer accept as "fully equipped" a car that lacks any essential for ideal driving under any conditions of weather or traffic congestion.

Having seen the new Rickenbacker models; having yourself experienced the wonderful performance of the 4-Wheel Brakes, the luxury of a vibrationless motor, and the thrill of handling this car;

Having seen what constitutes "complete equipment" according to the new Rickenbacker standard;

And when you consider that all this is included in the new "delivered" price, you will be at a loss to understand how it is possible to produce so much for so little money.

We hope you will see all the others before you see the Rickenbacker—for only by direct comparison can you appreciate the amazing difference in quality, performance and value.

For, none other shows the same startling acceleration coupled with equally surprising deceleration.

None other possesses "vim, vigor and vitality" to compare with this world-famous Rickenbacker Six.

None other can perform so sensationally and yet prove as sturdy and durable in everyday hard service.

In those qualities that lend a thrill as well as luxury to motoring, this Rickenbacker Six is still supreme.

In advanced engineering, Rickenbacker is the outstanding leader. In style, the fashion plate. In Pride of Ownership—unique.

Budgets Like Paper Patterns

And the Household Budget is No Different in Principle and Working Plan From Any Other.

(By Bertha N. Baldwin.)

Sarah MacLeod, of the Society for Saving of Cleveland, says: "A budget is simply a pattern for one's spending and bears the same relation to the income as a paper pattern does to the material out of which a dress is to be made. If there is a small amount of goods the pattern is adjusted carefully and planned to get the essential parts out of the material. Just so, a small income carefully planned, gives better food, clothing and shelter. If there is nice material and a sufficient quantity, care is still needed to adjust the parts to get the best effect and to leave material for the extra parts of washes, girdles, etc. This is the large income and the carefully planned budget gives better essentials and also leaves room for the other things which are wanted."

Bolton Hall says: "Life is not made for savings, but savings are made that life may be more abundant."

The whole idea of budgeting is to manage your money instead of letting it manage you.

To make a budget means to work out your philosophy of life, because what a growing family does to you first must know what you want to get out of life before you can decide just what things you want to spend your money for. Budgeting is outlining your policy. "How you spend your money" is not so important as it is to KNOW how you spend it, and to know WHY to spend it as you do. If we do not infringe on "their life, liberty and pursuit of happiness," the rest of the world cares not much what you want to do—that is your own affair.

The Budget Outline.

Coming to the point of making the budget:

1. Estimate the total income from all income—salary, interest, rent, etc. If the income is irregular, it is better to estimate on the least amount, although it is quite legitimate to estimate on the average.
2. Subtract the income taxes, if any, from the total income.
3. Subtract the amount you wish to save, which includes life insurance, building payments, savings bank, etc.
4. The remaining income, which is the working income, is divided into five parts and must provide for adequate food, safe shelter, suitable clothing, necessary operating expenses and allow for personal expenditures, usually called "advancement."

The "two can live cheaper than one" fallacy has sadly misled many trusting, hopeful young folks into ill-considered matrimony. Here is an illuminating table from Dr. Andrew's book which shows what an increasing family does to different classes of expenses and to savings. It will bear study.

	Two ($250 a Year ($20.83 a Month.)	Three ($350 a Year ($29.17 a Month.)	Four ($450 a Year ($37.50 a Month.)
Savings	$55.33	$55.86	$43.00
Taxes (federal income)	1.67	3.34	5.00
Rent	30.00	30.00	35.00
Food	40.00	48.00	56.00
Clothing	20.00	33.00	36.00
Housekeeping expenses	25.00	30.00	32.00
Church, charities	19.00	17.00	16.00
Health, recreation, education	18.00	18.00	16.00
Personal, miscellaneous	18.00	17.00	16.00

The Budget Book of Household Accounting

pense, i.e., service, laundry, repairs and replacements, telephone, household supplies, for cleaning and the upkeep of furniture and clothing.

Car fare not for business is usually charged to this department. Many of these items can be varied to individual preference. Others, such as heating, lighting and water, are fairly definite. This may vary from 10 to 20 per cent.

The Clothing Budget.

Much can be said about the amount of money spent for clothing and it depends on so many points. The important point in choosing clothing is its comfort, healthfulness and suitability. Clothing should be a means of self-expression and typify to some extent at least its wearer. Eighteen to twenty per cent of the income is suggested here.

Food Plans.

The amount spent for food is perhaps one of the most important because a minimum amount will affect health more seriously than a minimum allowance in anything else. After a person has satisfied the requirements of protein, minerals, vitamins, calories and bulk the amount spent on food is due to our standard of living and our preference as to flavor. On an income of $1,800 to $2,200, 40 cents per person per day will give a variety of standard foods with a limited selection for quality. For that amount one could have for breakfast cereal with milk, cooked fruit, bread and butter, with milk for children and coffee for adults. For lunch soup, salad, or meat substitute, bread and butter, milk for children, cocoa for adults; for dinner, hamburger steak, potatoes, spinach, bread, butter, custard, milk for children and tea for adults. This is considered the comfort level in food budgets, and represents the income of skilled mechanics, clerks and teachers.

With incomes of $2,500 to $3,000, which are listed as moderate level, 60 to 90 cents per person per day will give a good variety, but no unusual food delicacies or luxuries.

The amount spent for food varies with what quantity can be purchased at one time, and with the locality. The total cost is affected largely by the lack or presence of waste, which may mean spoilage of food, loss in cooking because of burning, too large servings which are left on the plate, and other wastes which are thrown into the garbage pail.

Budgeting the Income for Bachelors; Male and Female.

The proportions for savings and expenditures, especially for food and shelter and clothing, are quite different for one. One person living on $100 a month, for instance, should save about $12 and must spend $48, nearly half of the income, for food and rent, $16.75 being allowed for clothing. This is per month.

On $150 a month the single person should save $31 and may spend $56 for room, board, and lunches and $25 for clothing; yearly items of $672 for rent and food and $300 for clothing, the savings being nearly 21 per cent in this case. Compare these figures with those for two or three in a family and you will see what happens to the budget!

At the other end of this line the stenographer with $75 a month salary is required to save only a dollar a week, even by stern theorists. But this is $52 a year and a handy sum for vacations, Christmas or unexpected expenses. Here the room and board for four weeks could be only $38 and clothing $14.

These are all measuring rods; each case is an individual one. But you will get much more for your money if you plan the spending of it; even if you spend it all! You will get what you need most and not "fritter it away" on non essentials.

The expense book shown in the illustration is a good sized, nicely bound publication, laid out in an extraordinarily clear and concise manner and covering all family expenditures.

For twenty cents in stamps or currency we will send you one of these books in which you may keep an accurate record of your monthly expenses. Form the budget habit—send for a book immediately. Address The Gas and Electric Co., 611 Broadway, Kingston.

Fan As a Heater.

This is the time of the year to know that the electric fan has more uses than cooling the house—try putting it in front of the radiator or register one of these cold mornings and see how it affects the rapidity with which the room is heated. The warmth will thus be distributed in but a fraction of the time required without the fan.

From Nothing to 500,000,000.

The electric incandescent lamp recently celebrated its forty-fourth birthday. The commercial manufacture of the lamp was begun in 1881 and thirty thousand lamps were produced the first year, while last year the total produced for the United States alone amounted to 500,000,000.

Electricity in Morocco.

Plans for several hydro-electric plants for the French territory in Southern Morocco are under way. The electricity generated will be used for lighting purposes and will also supply power to a number of phosphate works.

Just Like Kingston.

The Los Angeles police are to have an electric siren system. It will cost $6,000 and will include seventy sirens. These will be located at strategic points in the metropolitan district.

Specials for Kitchenette.

Special electric clothes washing machines with folding wringers have been designed for kitchenette use.

FOR LEFTOVERS OF MEAT AND SAUSAGE.

Run bits of meat through the grinder. All to thick cream sauce and serve for breakfast with baked potatoes, or your over slices of toast.

When there is but a little of leftover sausage, ham, bacon or other meat mince it and add to scrambled eggs or omelets. It will improve the flavor. Or combine the leftover bits of meat and use them in bean or pea soup. It becomes hearty enough for the main supper dish.

Rice or macaroni cooked with tomato gains richness and flavor by having even a tablespoonful of minced meat added to it. Rice may be cooked with cheese and tomato just as macaroni is prepared with them. D. M. H., New Jersey.

Secures Bank Position.

Miss Leona Van DeMark, an honor graduate of Spencer's Business School, Wall and John streets, has been placed in a desirable position as stenographic clerk with the State of New York National Bank, Wall and John streets.

Lampblack by Electricity.

An electrical method of producing lampblack has been devised. This will result in saving large quantities of natural gas formerly used to produce the lampblack.

Dance Tonight.

The regular Saturday night dance will be held at the White Eagle Hall, Delaware avenue, this evening. Good music is assured.

What Flattens 'Em.

Most people display money enough for short flights. It is a whole web of it that flattens them.

Skating Team at High School

Debutants Get Material to Work on. Lazy Ones Quake As Regent's Announcements Draw Very Close.

Monday morning the students of the local high school start a skating team. The pupils who have studied fully are not worrying, but those who have not studied are worried and quaking before the thought of the Regent's.

Under the guidance of Mr. Stevens, a skating team has been organized and trials were held Friday afternoon and today for the week at Newburgh. There is some good skating material in the school and a few prizes should come to the local.

The scores of the basketball games played by the high school first and second teams will be found elsewhere.

The varsity debating squad received the question for the debate with Poughkeepsie and is working hard on the trial debate between the negative and affirmative teams. The question is "Resolved, that the United States should use the B. Peace Plan as its Foreign Policy."

As has been published before, the Flaherty Trio will give three recitals under the auspices of the Athletic Association. Thursday morning a program was given under Miss Tarrant's direction. The first number, a selection from Eugene Field, was given by Vera Campbell, the second number, presented in fine style by Bessie Flaherty, was "Dinky" at the Danzig School. The third number was one of Robert W. Service's stirring poems of the northland, "The Call of the Yukon," was given by Robert Thompson. The last number was entitled "A Tragedy in Millinery" and was amusing throughout. It was given by Margaret Kniskern.

Arrests for Intoxication

carry them and we have also found persons possessing firearms unlawfully be used by them to obtain outside orders from anyone, without mail orders, and ship them cash on delivery through the mail, the article being delivered by carriers. Of being delivered by carriers. Of being delivered by carriers. Of being delivered by carriers.

A complaint of this practice to the federal authorities brought forth the statement that they were powerless to stop the sale of transportation of firearms in this manner. An effort should be made to induce congress to pass a law to prevent the unlawful shipment of firearms from one state to another, particularly if one state has a law restricting the sale or possession of firearms.

The number of arrests for the year was 863; 18 of these were women. This is the largest number of arrests the department has ever had in any one year. The proportion of crime has increased in all grades of crime. Arrests were made in 18 cases of felonies. While this is not unusual for a city of 30,000 population, it is slightly larger than in former years. This is 26 per cent of all arrests recorded for the year. This was unusual and is an indication that the use of intoxicants was far above the average. The department arrested 358 persons for automobile violations. This is about 42 per cent of all the arrests for the year. The arrests made for the various other crimes equalled 32 per cent of all the arrests, which was about the usual amount.

Taken as the statistics will show, the use of intoxicants and operation of the automobile equal 68 per cent of the arrests made by this department at the present time. The department collected during the year $1,309 for various sundry licenses, $165 for junk licenses. This, with gifts, rewards and other moneys, were turned over to the city treasurer to be applied to the police pension fund.

The number of street lights reported out for the year total 432 arcs and 412 incandescents. Proper deductions were made from the bills of the Electric Company for these failures.

804 men who applied were given lodging at police station. The department appreciates the continued confidence placed in it by your honorable board and acknowledges the spirit of cooperation given it at all times during the year. Your kindly advice, good will and assistance was also appreciated. Without this the department would have been seriously embarrassed.

We desire to continue the usual cooperation extended each and every other city department and at this time express our appreciation for their aid during the past year.

To the press of the city we desire to express our sincere thanks for their cooperation and consideration of matters pertaining to police work and for their valuable aid in many instances.

Annexed hereto will be found more detailed work of the department in tabulated form.

Very truly yours,
J. ALLAN WOOD,
Chief of Police.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

A Practical Garment For Young Children.

4568. Here is a style that will appeal to the busy mother of little children, especially those of the "creeping" age. This design provides a convenient closing at the inner seam, which is very practical for children below 2 years of age. The garment may also be made with this seam closed, for the back is in drop style.

The pattern is cut in 3 sizes: 6 months, 1 and 2 years. A 6 months size requires 1 1/2 yard of 36 inch material.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of our up-to-date fall and winter catalogue, containing 550 designs of ladies, and misses' and children's patterns, a concise and comprehensive article of dressmaking, also some points for the needle (illustrating 30 of the various, simple stitches), all valuable hints to the home dressmaker.

Catalogue Notice.

ULSTER GARAGE EMPLOYEES ENJOY GALA EVENING.

On Thursday night, the employees of the Ulster Garage, Ltd., held their regular monthly get-together dinner at Tony Kohl's at Spillway. The boys turned out to the last man and the dinner was voted as being the best ever. There was more than enough music, as all those having talent brought their instruments with them, the consequence being that the orchestra of the evening had more different pieces than Paul Whiteman's Band. "Abie, the Agent," gave several beautiful renditions of popular ballads and Dave Hanyan shook a wicked violin. Both were roundly applauded. The surprise of the evening came after the talks in which the New Special Six Sedan was analyzed as well as the new Cadillac Sedan. This treat—and it was indeed a treat—was a ballet dance by "Smithie, the Expressman." His efforts were well received and after several encores he pleaded for the applause to subside. After some character impersonations by Jack Vail, the minstrelman, and a few stories the boys thought they would call it a night. The banqueters climbed aboard awaiting cars and came back to home and Kingston to prepare for the morrow.

PALENTOWN.

Palentown, Jan. 19.—Mrs. Mary Braunen is doing the house work for Mrs. Alfred Palen. Mrs. Palen is ill and is being attended by Dr. Dumond. All hope she will soon be around again.

Mrs. H. Traver and daughter, Mildred, spent Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. Bertha Reeves. Mrs. Charles Merriweather from Krumville was also a visitor.

John Traver is drawing timber to Jesse Shurter's saw mill at Sansonville.

The teacher, Mr. Anderson, is having the pupils sell lead pencils to buy a ball for the school pupils.

Mrs. Ella Krom and Mrs. H. Traver were callers on Mrs. Everett Brannen Thursday last.

Homor Traver is spending some time at Mettackonks.

All are sorry to hear that Jerry Decker is not so well at this writing. Mrs. Ella Krom is spending a few days with her mother, Mrs. Jerry Keator.

Jacob Baker from Mettackonks was a caller at H. Traver's Tuesday.

Miss Mae Lyons and friend from Kingston spent Thursday night at Wilson Gray's.

It Was Worth the Money.

A business man received a letter from his son stating that the lad was doing well in football, stood near the head of his class, was popular socially and liked his college. This mislabeled he showed to an associate with the remark: "I sent the boy $50 and I don't regret it."

"I shouldn't think you would," responded his friend warmly. "That letter is full of good news. Many a time I send $50 just for a hard luck story."

Ticket Was Still Good.

As an express train was going through a station one of the passengers leaned out of the window, overbalanced, and fell out. He fortunately landed on a sandheap, so that he did himself no great injury; but, with torn clothes, he said to a porter:—

"What shall I do?"
"You're all right, mister," said the porter, "your ticket allows you to break your journey."

Taking Advantage of Leap Year. He—"Scientists say that blondes will disappear in a few years." She (seizing her opportunity)—"Well, if you want one, you'd better speak up now."

What She Said.

Alice—"Did you say 'This is no sudden' when Jack proposed to you?" Agnes—"No; I intended to, but I was so flustered that I forgot, and cried 'At last!'"

Card of Thanks.

Mr. John F. Conlin and family wish to extend their sincere thanks to their friends who so kindly assisted them in their recent bereavement.

OUST 12 KINGS IN EIGHT YEARS

Overthrow of George of Greece, Latest Ruler to Lose His Crown.

London.—The sudden exile of George II of Greece marks the passing of the twelfth crown in Europe in eight years. One has only to call the roll, beginning with King Nicholas of Montenegro, who fled to Italy on January 19, 1918, to realize how obsolete has become that phrase, "the divine right of kings."

Only a year ago the 28th of September George II ascended to the throne of Greece after his father had been forced to abdicate for the second time. But even in that brief period the former crown prince and his beautiful queen, Elizabeth, the daughter of Queen Maria of Rumania, have learned how hard it is to please any of the people very much of the time. On November 12 of this year the military Republican faction in Greece asked the king to take two months vacation. George failed to leave as quickly as desired and he later found it impossible to go and remained a prisoner in the palace.

Ever since 1832 Greece has had a turbulent time with her various kings, but the disease with which she is affected now seems to be a general European ailment.

Had Dream of Balkan Empire.

The abdication of Nicholas of Montenegro was in another way symbolic of the general situation in Europe. It represented the thwarting of his ambitions for a greater empire. In his case with Serbia in the Balkans, just as the motor car rush of the Kaiser for Holland on the midnight of November 9, 1918, symbolized the wrecking of his dreams of world empire.

In August, 1910, Nicholas became sufficiently bold to take the title of king. Before then he had been archduke. He had been very popular and had taught his people to fight the Turk and how to work. For himself he learned how to play American poker, and this did not help the Montenegrin treasury to any extent.

After his overthrow he set up a court at Neuilly, near Paris, where he amused himself for some time and tried vainly to get back his crown. Nicholas had six beautiful daughters. Helena became queen of Italy. Another was the mother of Alexander of Serbia and another a Russian grand duchess. He died at Antibes, France, on March 1, 1921, after many vain attempts to recover his throne.

The story of the tragic ending of the czar of Russia's vacillating reign has been told so often and has in it so much of romance, adventure and intrigue that it is familiar to all. Nicholas II had reigned twenty years when the World War broke out. The revolution came in March, 1917.

Death of Russia's Czar.

The czar and his family then went into exile in Siberia. On his way from the capital he mentions in his diary: "Sentries and whole regiments I passed were silent and did not even salute. My spirit is heavy." Their failure to salute was an omen of the end, for the czar had forever lost his hold upon the people and from that time his wanderings did not cease. When he returned to Russia he was held by the Bolsheviks.

With his wife and children Nicholas II was killed on the night of July 16, 1918, at Ekaterinburg. The Soviet government finally issued an official report of the arrest and slaying of the Romanoff family. Of the twelve monarchs who have lost their thrones the end of Czar Nicholas II is undoubtedly the most tragic of all.

Chronologically King Ferdinand of Bulgaria was the third ruler to lose his crown. During the World War he had managed to hold on to it with one hand and keep his sword in the other. In 1918, however, this became increasingly difficult. Ferdinand had to devote both hands to his sword, and while doing so the Bulgarian regal bonnet slipped away.

Czar Ferdinand had held firm away while it lasted. In September, 1918, he started hastily off for Coburg, taking enough of the family fortune to keep him in good spirits for the rest of his life. Prince Boris succeeded Ferdinand. Only a month later his abdication was reported, but Boris III is still on the Bulgarian throne.

With the defeat of the central powers in 1918 there was a grand exit of emperors, kings, thrones, crowns and scepters. The Kaiser and Emperor Karl of Austria both themselves off the stage at about the same time. Then Friedrich August, king of Saxony, who had been ruling since October, 1904, was ousted from grace. On November 13, 1918, King Ludwig III renounced the throne of Bavaria. It required another couple of weeks for the venerable William II, king of Wurtemberg, to follow suit, but he did so on November 30. He insisted upon retaining the title of Duke of Wurtemberg, and lived at Bebenhausen castle, in the Black forest, most of the time after that until his death on October 2, 1921.

Bavarian Monarch Flees.

Emperor Karl of Austria went to Switzerland and made two unsuccessful attempts to regain his throne. These royalist revolutions resulted in the allies exiling him to Funchal, where he died in 1922.

Ludwig III of Bavaria took the throne in 1913 when his father, Luitpold, died. On the November day in 1918 that he renounced his throne his wife, Marie Theresa, who was princess royal of Hungary and Bohemia, died suddenly. This double calamity greatly affected Ludwig.

He fled with other royal members of his household to the Austrian Tyrol. He died at Sarvar castle in Hungary in October, 1921.

The exit of King Friedrich August of Saxony was less dignified than the abdication of Ludwig. The Saxony monarch was forcibly deposed on Armistice day, 1918; with two grand dukes. The grand duke of Oldenburg, whose house dated back to 1066, and the grand duke of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, who had been on his throne since 1901, were both deprived of their thrones with Friedrich August.

Death of Constantine.

With a new government and an attempt at independence King Fuad I took charge of Egyptian affairs early in 1922. Under his reign visitors to Egypt suffered more outrages than had occurred in many years. Independence had been proclaimed and a constitution adopted, but the country was more troubled than before. Finally, in November, 1922, the various parties united to oust the king. Fuad purchased a palace near the outskirts of Rome as a precautionary measure and was justified in his selection, for he was asked to abdicate.

A development which aroused much more interest was the dramatic abdication of Mahomet VI, sultan of Turkey, on November 17, 1922. In April, 1922, the sultan appealed to the Moslem world to ignore the divorcing of the sultanate and caliphate by the Angora government. But this did not stop the growth of the Angora party or the weakening of Mohammed's influence. Early on the morning of November 17, 1922, the sultan fled from his palace in Constantinople and placed himself under British care. He took passage to Malta on the British battleship Malaya and has been living in seclusion at San Remo.

The late King Constantine lost his crown twice since 1918. He ascended to the throne in March, 1919, but the spring of 1917 brought much trouble to the Greek king, who was closely tied up with the cause of his brother-in-law, the Kaiser. On June 11 he was deposed by the allies and fled to Switzerland. A plebiscite was held in Greece in December, 1920, to determine whether Constantine should come back. He was recalled.

When Constantine returned to Athens from his exile he was given a tremendous ovation, and a great wave of popularity and patriotism followed. Reverses of the army in Asia Minor and its final defeat turned the tide against the king. He abdicated the second time on September 27, 1922, and he died the following January at Palermo, Sicily.

Foreign Born Population Center Now in Indiana

Washington.—The center of foreign born population of the country is located in Allen county, Indiana, 10.8 miles east of New Haven, having taken a southwestward trend after two decades of southeastward movement. In determining the foreign born center, the census bureau found it had moved 18.9 miles in the ten years from 1910 to 1920. Its movement was 11.5 miles eastward and 15 miles southward.

"The change in direction of the movement of this center from east to west is due principally to the increase in foreign born white population in the state of California," says the bureau. "The total increase in the foreign born white population in the United States was 307,200 and the increase in the states of Texas, California and Arizona was 316,222, or 83 per cent of the total increase."

Hen Charged With Theft of Gem Freed by Judge

Boston.—A hen cannot steal, and Lady Camille is beyond the clutches of the law, it was ruled in the Chelsea district court by Judge Blossom. So the blue Orpington hen which plucked a diamond from a ring on the finger of George A. Hennessey and was arrested for larceny was restored to her coop at a chicken show here.

Hennessey had no redress against John Strom, owner of Lady Camille, the court said, as Strom had not committed larceny. Unless Strom relents and extracts the jewel or sells the bird to Hennessey, the latter must do without his diamond.

Chicken Scratch Costs Child Eye.

Sandusky, O.—Media Amolsch, three, had her left eye removed by a specialist here as the result of a scratch made near the eye by a small chicken with which she was playing. Poisoning developed and the operation was resorted to in an effort to save the child's life.

Town in Alaska Free From Taxes

Iditarod, Alaska.—This town, in the heart of a gold placer district, finds it unnecessary this year to make a tax levy.

The municipality has a reserve of $3,500 in the treasury. Revenues from federal licenses will amount to more than the expenses of the town government. It is planned to build a municipal electric plant out of the surplus and to furnish the current free to residents.

Iditarod has a winter population of about twenty-two. In summer, during the mining season, several hundred are here.

SHOES OF SKELETON IDENTIFY LOST BOY

Parents of Jersey City Child End Eight-Year Hunt.

Greeley, Pa.—The markings on a pair of child's shoes made it nearly certain that the small skull and other bones found in underbrush not far from Greeley were the remains of Jimmy Glass, the four-year-old boy whose disappearance on May 12, 1915 caused a worldwide search.

Charles L. Glass of Jersey City, father of the boy, washed the clay from the shoes and found the maker's name cut on the bottom of the shoe under the insole. The boy had worn a pair of nearly new shoes of this make when he disappeared. The only other relics of clothing that were found were rusty metal buttons and buckles from the overalls.

Now he came to his death is not known, but it is thought that he had died of fright, exhaustion and hunger after losing his way and wandering through a thick mass of scrub oak, maple and other underbrush. His body was less than 100 feet from a wood road and about a mile from the main road. It was found there by Otto Winkler, who was hunting deer. The bones were all found in a small space between the skull and the shoes, indicating that the body had been undisturbed since his death. The only wild animal that might have attacked him is the bear. It is years since bears have been seen near Greeley, but they are sometimes reported only a few miles from here.

Whole World Combed for Him.

The boy and his parents had been at the Faust farm, Greeley, about a mile from the place where the body was found. Miss Glass left Jimmy playing outside the house when she went to the village to mail a letter. He was gone when she returned. From that day until now no trace of him was found.

The search was carried on first in the village, then among neighboring villages, then all over the United States and finally abroad. The boy's picture and description went all over the world. Positive identifications were made again and again and the parents experienced many times as much agony of suspense followed by the disappointment of discovering that the identified child was not theirs after all.

Death From Exhaustion.

Dr. J. H. Ross gave the certificate of death, which he wrote was due to "exposure and exhaustion, being lost in the woods and having wandered from home."

Capt. Joseph Rooney, who has traveled a total of 48,000 miles to look at scores of boys erroneously thought to be Jimmy Glass, said that there was no doubt that the search was now at an end.

"I am still convinced," he said, "that the story told by Edward Faust, the boarding-house keeper, and Fred Lucky, a boy, is true, and that is that they saw two men and a woman in an automobile carry the boy away after wrapping him in a robe. I believe that he must have died, either from exhaustion or from fright, and that they then took him to this place in the woods and planted the body there."

Mother's Mind at Peace.

Coroner J. H. Ludwig said that no inquest was necessary and gave the father and mother permission to take the relics away. They were placed in a square box and carried by Captain Rooney of Jersey City.

On arriving at Jersey City, Mr. and Mrs. Glass were escorted to their home.

"We had hoped until the very last," said Mr. Glass, "that the boy would be found alive. Since that was impossible, we are glad that the search is finally at an end."

The mother showed five large boxes of letters which had come to her from every state in the country and many parts of the world. Most of the letters were written by persons confident that they could lead the parents to the missing child. At times the family was trying to follow seven or eight of these false trails at once. Some of the letters were written with such detail and positiveness that the relatives of the boy had their hopes raised to the highest point. Years of crushing disappointment had not taken away their capacity to be tortured in this way, and plausible reports had within the last year caused the mother and father to go through all this emotional stress again.

"My mind is at peace, now," said the mother, pointing at the heaps of letters. "We had hoped so that we could not be, it is a consolation to have the body."

Koreans on Increase.

Seoul.—The total population of Korea as registered at the end of last year amounted to 17,620,761, according to announcement just made. Of these 17,208,139 were Koreans, 386,493 Japanese and 2,129 foreigners.

Compared with the census of twelve years ago, these figures show an increase of 4,318,744. Of the total population, men number 9,058,684 and women 8,538,077.

Reports Capture of 400 Goats.

Austria, Tex.—The capture of 400 goats and three horses near Dryden, alleged to have been smuggled across the Mexican border, was reported to ranger headquarters here by Capt. Jerry Gray. The capture was made recently and a man said to be Max Luckie was arrested, Captain Gray reported.

People of Tasmania.

They are 78.2 per cent native Tasmanians, 11.5 natives of the United Kingdom and 7.3 natives of other Australasian colonies. There are 600 or 700 colored aliens and about 250 half-caste aborigines.

GLORY AND THE SACRIFICE

In Which the Gift and the Giver Tell Each a Separate Tale

By ELEANOR PORTER

Author of "Pollyanna," "Just David," Etc.

Copyright by Eleanor H. Porter.

THE Honorable Peter Wentworth was not a church-going man, and when he appeared at the prayer meeting on that memorable Friday evening there was at once a most interesting interest manifested by every one present, even to the third little minister himself. The object of their amazed glances fortunately did not keep the good people long in suspense. After a timid prayer—slightly incoherent, but abounding in petitions for single mindedness and worshipful reverence—from the minister's wife, the Honorable Peter Wentworth rose to his feet and loudly cleared his throat:

"Ahem! Ladies and gentlemen—er—ah—brethren," he corrected, hastily, faint memories of a godly youth prompting his now unaccustomed lips; "I—er—I understand that you are desirous of building a new church. A very laudible wish—very," with his eyes fixed on a zigzag crack in the wall across the room; "and I understand that your funds are—er—insufficient. I am, in fact, informed that you need two thousand dollars. Ahem! Ladies—er—brethren, I stand here to announce that on the first day of January I will place in your pastor's hands the sum of one thousand dollars, provided"—and he paused and put the tips of his forefingers together impressively—"provided you will raise an equal amount on your own part. The first day of next January, remember. You have nearly a year, you will notice, in which to raise the money. I—er—I hope you will be successful." And he sat down heavily.

The remainder of that meeting was not conspicuous for deep spirituality, and after the benediction the Honorable Peter Wentworth found himself surrounded by an excited crowd of grateful church members. The honorable gentleman was distinctly pleased. He had not given anything away before since—well, he had the same curious choking feeling in his throat now that he remembered to have felt when he gave the contents of his dinner pail to the boy across the aisle at the old red school house.

After all, it was a rather pleasant sensation; he almost wished it had often been his.

It was not until the silent hours of night brought a haunting premonition of evil to the Reverend John Grey that the little minister began to realize what the church had undertaken.

One thousand dollars! The village was small and the church society smaller. The Honorable Peter Wentworth was the only man who by even the politest fiction could be called rich. Where, indeed, was the thousand to be found?

By the end of the week an urgent appeal for money had entered the door of every house in Fairville.

This was in February, yet by the end of May there was only four hundred dollars in that fund treasury. The pastor sent out a second appeal, following it up with a house-to-house visit. The sum grew to six hundred dollars.

Then the ladies held a mass meeting in the damp, ill-smelling vestry. The result was a series of entertainments varying from a strawberry festival to the "passion play" illustrated. These heroic efforts brought the fund up to eight hundred dollars. Two hundred yet to be found—and it was November!

With anxious faces and puckered brows, the ladies held another meeting in that cheerless vestry—then listened home with new courage and a new plan.

Bits of silk and tissue paper, gay-colored wools and knots of ribbon appeared as by magic in every cottage. Wary fingers fashioned impossible fancy articles of no earthly use to any one, and tired housewives sat up till midnight dressing dolls in flimsy muslin. The church was going to hold a fair! Everything and everybody succumbed graciously or ungraciously to the inevitable.

The fair and a blizzard began simultaneously the first day of December. The one lasted a week, and the other three days. The people conscientiously plowed through the snow, attended the fair, and bought recklessly. The children made themselves sick with rich candies, and Deacon White lost his temper over a tin trumpet he drew in a grab bag. At the end of the week there were three cases of nervous prostration, one of pneumonia, two of grippe—and one hundred dollars and five cents in money.

The ladies drew a long breath and looked pleased; then their faces went suddenly white. Where was ninety-nine dollars and ninety-five cents to come from in the few days yet remaining? Silently and dejectedly they went home.

It was then that the Reverend John Grey rose to the occasion and shut himself in his study all night, struggling with a last appeal to be copied on the faithful mimeograph and delivered by his patient youngest son.

That appeal was straight from the heart of an all but despairing man. Was two thousand dollars to be lost—and because of a paltry ninety-nine dollars and ninety-five cents?

The pressure was severe and became crushing as the holidays approached. The tree for the Sunday school had long since been given up, but Christmas eve a forlorn group of watling-eyed children gathered in the church and spoke Christmas songs and sang Christmas carols, with long-gaze fixed on the empty corner where was wont to be the shining tree. It was on Christmas day that the widow Blake fought the good fight for her little six-by-nine room. On the bed lay a black cashmere gown, faded and rusty and carefully darned; on the table lay a little heap of bills and silver. The woman gathered the money in her two hands and dropped it into her lap; then she smoothed the bill neatly one upon another, and built little pyramids of dimes and quarters. Fifteen dollars! It must be five years now that she had been saving the money, and she did so need a new dress! She needed it to be—why, even decent!—looking smartly at the frayed folds on the bed.

It was on Christmas day, too, that the little cripple who lived across the bridge received a five-dollar gold piece by registered mail

Ulster Classis Men Meet

Celebrate First Anniversary of Union of Classes of Kingston and of Ulster—Dr. Ingham Speaks.

At the Fair Street Reformed Church Friday evening some 200 members of the classis of Ulster of the Reformed Church met and a dinner was served by the ladies of the church. The dinner marked the first annual celebration of the union of the classes of Kingston and of Ulster.

The Rev. W. F. Stowe pastor of the Reformed Church of the Comfort of this city presided as chairman. The dinner was opened with the singing of the Doxology and followed by invocation by the Rev. Lucas Doeve, pastor of the First Dutch Reformed Church. The Rev. Dr. Seeley at the close of the dinner announced that the Men's Bible Class of the church had provided the smoking of welcome to the laymen of the churches of the county that was given by Dr. Seeley who stated that as the date was also the 15th anniversary of the organization of the Fair Street Reformed Church it was consequently very appropriate. Dr. Seeley introduced Dr. John A. Ingham, secretary of the Progressive Campaign Committee of the Reformed Church of America.

Dr. Ingham spoke of the two phases of the work under his committee, that of Education and Domestic Missions. He spoke of the Hudson river territory as the stronghold of the growth of the church. He gave a very interesting summary of the growth of the church since the time of Christ. In 500 years there were 15 millions of Christians. In 1,000 years there were 50 millions and to the time of Luther there were 100 millions. By 1800 the number had increased to 300 millions and the nineteenth century has seen this number increased until today there are 400 millions of Christians.

The Rev. William J. Chamberlain, secretary of the board of foreign missions, son of a missionary to India, and a former missionary to India, was the next speaker. He spoke of recent growth of the church. At the conclusion of the World War there was a decided reaction and the churches in America suffered for a time. In 1919 only 44,000 new members were taken in. A year later there were 667,000; in 1921, 761,000 and in the year just passed there were 1,262,000.

"In politics we have been guilty of real provincialism. We only awake to an international consciousness recently. But the church started in 1745. At that time the first charter for a foreign missionary society was taken out. Others followed within a few years. In religion, you know, we early realized that the more we export, the more we have at home. It was in 1889 that a man from Ulster county, James Cantine, went to Arabia alone. Just recently, on November 30, he sailed again for a furlough, to found another mission in Arabia. Four men sail tomorrow to join him in this work. We have today 180 missionaries, 330 helpers, 30 missions, 350 sub-stations, 206,000 Christians, 10 high schools, 350 smaller schools, 4 colleges and a number of hospitals in our foreign fields."

At the conclusion of the two addresses the Rev. Mr. Stowe expressed his appreciation and stated that in his opinion there had been no mistake made in the selection of speakers. A vote was then taken as to whether the meeting should not be made an annual affair and the decision was unanimous that the classis hold a meeting and banquet each year.

The meeting was closed with prayer by the Rev. H. C. Sheffer, pastor of the Saugerties Reformed Church. The Rev. J. B. Stetson pronounced the benediction and the very successful meeting was brought to a close.

Fish and Game Ass'n Meeting

New Members Secured—Officers Elected—$500 to be Paid for Fish and Game for Stocking Purposes.

The annual meeting of the Ulster County Fish and Game Association was held Friday evening at the supervisors' room in the court house. The meeting was one of the largest ever held by the local association and a great deal of enthusiasm was shown. Several new members were secured and the prospects of a very successful year were demonstrated.

Officers for the year were elected as follows: President, Elva H. Bogart; vice-president, LeRoy Long-eneker; secretary and treasurer, Carlton S. Preston. A. B. Shufeldt, C. E. Wonderly were elected assistants to the secretary in assisting in the placing of fish and game about the county.

President Bogart gave a very interesting outline of the work which the Association has accomplished during the past year and planned to do the coming year to make Ulster county one of the best in the state for sportsmen. The Association endeavors to annually replace or protect fish and game in the woods and waters of the county so that the sportsmen may continue to enjoy the good hunting and fishing for which the local woods and streams are noted. Fishing in the streams of the Castkills annually brings hundreds of fishermen to this section and through their patronage many boarding houses and other businesses are benefited.

The Association will endeavor of bringing this matter to the attention of the public and thereby gain their assistance. The Association went on record as ready to war to the limit, to exterminate if possible, the kingfisher, red squirrel and crow, it being considered that they are the greatest present enemies of the small animals of the woods. The members were requested to use their influence with the supervisors in their respective towns toward obtaining a resolution in the board taking the bounty off the red fox and putting it on the gray fox, and fixing the amount of the bounty at $5.

It was voted to set aside $150 for the purchase of small mouth bass to be distributed in the county lakes and streams and $50 for the purchase of pickerel for the same purpose. The Association plans to expend about $500 this year for the purchase of fish and game for distribution in the county. The secretary was authorized to purchase cotton-tail rabbits, Treyley, Hungarian partridge, quail, and grey squirrels in such number as he deemed best. The association will endeavor to re-establish the quail in this section.

A crate of snow-shoe rabbits which had just been received from Maine were exhibited at the meeting and were distributed among the members for propagation. One member who raises rabbits took along a pair and will endeavor to propagate them to later turn loose in the woods.

A special effort will be made this year to gain new members for the association which is so active in preserving and restocking the woods and streams of the county so that everyone may enjoy good hunting and fishing. In past years the association had been instrumental in replenishing depleted stocks of game and fish. This year a special appropriation has been made and all hunters and fishermen will receive the benefit.

Mr. Preston presented a list of game killed in Ulster county for the year 1921, the same being obtained from the Conservation Commission at Albany. "You see by this list just what it means not only in recreation but also in dollars and cents to our country," he said. From inquiry and my own observation of the past year the report will bring our more important game from a sportsman's point of view—i. e. rabbits, deer, partridge and our new members, the pheasant, to a still higher mark. I dare say the partridges killed will reach nearly 4,000 and pheasants from 555 to 1,000 or 1,500—an increase of at least 250 per cent. For this large increase credit must be given to your association and to its members, not only in the hatching of the eggs but protecting the birds as well as obeying the law.

Shenandoah Crew Divided

Officers in Two Factions For and Against Heinen While Men are Said to Refuse to Go to Pole Under McCrary.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Lakehurst, N. J., Jan. 19.—Factional differences which today threatened the success of the United States Navy's proposed polar flight next June, were reported at the Naval Air Station, home port of the giant dirigible Shenandoah here.

A secret inquiry ordered by Commander Ralph D. Weyerbacher, construction engineer of the ship, was in progress behind closed doors. Reports outside the meeting room were that Lt. E. H. Kincaid, assistant navigation officer, pilot of the Shenandoah on her wild ride of Wednesday night and Thursday morning, would amplify his complaint made yesterday against Captain Anton Heinen, civilian engineer, generally credited with saving the ship.

Heinen, who spent last night in New York, returned to Lakehurst today to attend the inquiry. Officers refused to comment on Lt. Kincaid's statements in which he took issue with what he termed "Heinen's effort to run the ship."

There was no secret here today that the navy men feel that Heinen, a civilian, and a native of Germany, although he has applied for citizenship, has been overcredited in the part he played in saving the ship.

Whether Heinen will reply to Kincaid, publicly, could not be learned. He was to make a statement to Commander Weyerbacher, however, and this was to be forwarded to Washington.

Factional difficulties between two groups at the air station have been an open secret for months. Captain Frank R. McCrary, commander of the ship, refused to discuss a report that a majority of the ship's crew of 40 men, had refused to volunteer to sail, under his command, on the proposed polar flight.

A week ago, it was learned, the crew was given the opportunity to volunteer for the trip. Every officer signed at once. It was reported here today that only five men had agreed to make the trip. The others it was said, insisted that a new commander be named to head the flight.

That all the officers did not agree with Lt. Kincaid's feeling toward Captain Heinen was indicated by Lt. Commander Maurice Pearce today. Lt. Pearce said: "Although I was in command of the Shenandoah when she broke away, I deferred to Captain Heinen as a man of greater experience. I had the greatest faith that Heinen would direct the ship back to her hangar."

Lt. Mayer, another officer aboard said: "Captain Heinen ordered me to make a survey of the ship, but not to make my report of damage to him. Heinen said he didn't want to know what had happened."

CURRENT OFFERINGS

AT THE THEATRES

The Chicago Stock Company concludes its engagement at the Opera House this evening with a production of the American sweetheart play, "The Love Test" a story of two crooks and the hard time they have in trying to follow the straight and narrow path. Besides the heart story there is comedy and thrills.

Manager Gildersleeve announced Friday night that this company had played to more paid admissions than the first five days than any other stock organization in the history of the theater.

At the Keeney Theater tonight will be shown for the last time, "6 Days" with Corinne Griffith and Frank Mayo. A great explosion imprisoning two young people in a deserted dugout in France, is the thrilling scene of the production.

At the Opera House Thursday evening, January 24, will be shown a musical sensation in song, dance and novelty "My China Doll."

An exceptional vaudeville bill is being presented at the Orpheum today and one which the management guarantees. The picture is "Love-bound," featuring Shirley Mason, the dainty little star of the William Fox group, and "Fighting Fish," a refined western drama. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, another Paramount feature, "Rugger of Red Gap," a master production by James Cruze, the man who made "The Covered Wagon." It is a comedy of western life.

At the Auditorium today Roy Stewart in "Pure Grit." Also Ben Turpin, the cross-eyed comedian, in "Love's Outcast."

POST OFFICES NOT TO BE POLLS FOR BOK

By Telegram to The Freeman. Washington, Jan. 19.—Postmaster General Harry S. New, has denied the request of Edward Bok that he be permitted to put ballot boxes in the post offices of the nation to receive votes on his $100,000 peace plan.

"There is no justification for the post office department being used in your plan," New said in a letter to Bok.

Unsettled Weather.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Washington, Jan. 19.—Unsettled weather, with snow over the northern states, rain and snow over the middle Atlantic states and the Ohio Valley during the next 24 to 36 hours was predicted today by the United States weather bureau.

pickerel and other fish taken from our waters, but I am not afraid to make the statement that at least 150,000 to 200,000 trout are taken from the Susquehanna Creek each season and to this add the other streams that contain trout, bass, pickerel, perch and we will boost this number to the million mark. It seems to me you should be proud of the fact that you are a member of the organization that not only affords pleasure and sport but also revenue to the county from outsiders who come here to enjoy this sport."

A NEW ENGLAND IDOL

They Had Something to Sell; He Had the Price—But There Was No Deal Made After All

By ELEANOR PORTER

Author of "Pollyanna," "Just David," Etc.

THE Hapgood twins were born in the great square house that set back from the road just on the outskirts of Fairtown. Their baby eyes had opened upon a world of faded portraits and somber half-cloth furniture.

From babyhood to girlhood the charm of the old place grew upon them, so much so that the thought of leaving it for homes of their own became distasteful to them, and they looked with scant favor upon the occasional village youths who sauntered up the path presumably on courtship bent.

Rev. John Hapgood—a man who ruled himself and all about him with a rod of rigid old-school orthodoxy—died when the twins were twenty; and the frail little woman who, as his wife, had for thirty years lived and moved solely because he expected breath and motion of her, followed soon in his footsteps. And then the twins were left alone in the great square house on the hill.

Miss Tabitha and Miss Rachel were not the only children of the family. There had been a son—the first born, and four years their senior. The headstrong boy and the iron rule had clashed, and the boy, when sixteen years old, had fled, leaving no trace behind him.

If Rev. John Hapgood grieved for his wayward son the members of his household knew it not, save as they might place their own constructions on the added sternness to his eyes and the deepening lines about his mouth. "Paul," when it designated the graceless runaway, was a forbidden word in the family.

Years had since passed—years of peaceful mornings and placid afternoons, and Paul had never appeared. On the 10th of June, their thirty-fifth birthday, the place never had looked so lovely. A small table laid with spotless linen and gleaming silver stood beneath the largest apple tree.

Rachel came out of the house and sniffed the air joyfully. "Delicious," she murmured. "Somehow, the 10th of June is specially fine every year."

In careful, uplifted hands she bore a round frosted cake, always the chief treasure of the birthday feast. The cake was covered with the tiny colored candles so dear to the heart of a child. Miss Rachel always bought those candles at the village store, with the apology:

"I want them for Tabitha's birthday cake, you know. She thinks so much of pretty things."

Tabitha invariably made the cake and fed it, and as she dropped the bits of colored sugar into place she would explain to Huldry, who occasionally "helped" in the kitchen:

"I wouldn't miss the candy for the world—my sister thinks so much of it!"

So each deceived herself with this pleasant bit of fiction, and yet had what she herself most wanted.

Rachel carefully placed the cake in the center of the table, feasted her eyes on its toothsome loveliness, then turned and hurried back to the house. The door had scarcely shut behind her when a small, ragged urchin darted in at the street gate, snatched the cake, and, at a sudden sound from the house, dashed out of sight behind a shrub close by.

The sound that had frightened the boy was the tapping of the heels of Miss Tabitha's shoes along the back porch. The lady descended the steps, crossed the lawn and placed a saucer of pickles and a plate of dainty sandwiches on the table.

"Why, I thought Rachel brought the cake," she said aloud. "It must be in the house; there's other things to get, anyway. I'll go back."

Again the click of the door brought the small boy close to the table. Filling both hands with sandwiches, he slipped behind the shrub just as the ladies came out of the house together. Rachel carried a small tray laden with sauce and tarts; Tabitha, one with water and steaming tea. As they neared the table each almost dropped her burden.

"Why, where's my cake?"

"And my sandwiches?"

"It's burglars—robbers!" Rachel looked furtively over her shoulder. "And all your lovely cake!" almost sobbed Tabitha.

"It was yours, too," said the other with a catch in her voice. "Oh, dear! What can have happened to it?"

The sisters had long ago set their trays upon the ground and were now wringing their hands helplessly. Suddenly a small figure appeared before them holding out four sadly crushed sandwiches and half of a crumbled cake.

"I'm sorry—awful sorry! I didn't think—I was so hungry. I'm afraid there ain't very much left," he added, with rueful eyes on the sandwiches.

"No, I should say not," vouchsafed Rachel, her voice firm now that the site of the "burglar" was declared. Tabitha only gasped.

The small boy placed the food upon the empty plates, and Rachel's lips twitched as she saw that he clumsily

"Why, sister!—sell? Oh, no, we couldn't do that," she shuddered. "But what can we do?"

"Do?—why lots of things!" Rachel's lips came together with a snap. "It's coming berry time, and there's our chickens, and the garden did beautifully last year. Then there's your lace work and my knitting—they bring something. Sell? Oh—we couldn't do that!"

But as the days and weeks flew by and September drew nearer, Rachel's courage failed her. Berries had been scarce, the chickens had died, the garden had suffered from drought, and but for their lace and knitting work, their income would have dwindled to a pitiful sum indeed. Ralph had been gone all summer; he had asked to go camping and fishing with some of his school friends. He was expected home a week before the college opened, however.

Tabitha grew more and more restless every day. Finally she spoke.

"Rachel, we'll have to sell—there isn't any other way. It would bring a lot," she continued hurriedly, before her sister could speak. "And we could find some pretty rooms somewhere. It wouldn't be so very dreadful!"

"Don't, Tabitha! Seems as though I couldn't bear even to speak of it. Of course, if I had an offer—a good big one—that would be quite another thing; but there's no hope of that."

Rachel's lips said "hope," but her heart said "winger," and the latter was what she really meant. She did not know that but two hours before a stranger had said to a Fairtown lawyer:

"I want a summer home in this locality. You don't happen to know of a good old treasure of a homestead for sale, do you?"

"I do not," replied the lawyer.

"There's a place on the edge of the village that would be just the ticket, but

Rachel raised her head.

"They're going to cut down everything—every single thing!" she gasped. "I know it," choked Tabitha, "and they're going to tear out lots of doors inside, and build in windows and things. Oh, Rachel—what shall we do?"

"Do? Why, we'll stand it, of course. We just mustn't mind if he turns the house into a hotel and the yard into a pasture!" she said hysterically. "We must just think of Ralph and of his being a doctor. Come, let's go to the village and see if we can rent that tenement of old Mrs. Goddard's."

With a long sigh and a smothered sob, Tabitha went to get her hat.

Mrs. Goddard greeted the sisters effusively, and displayed her bits of rooms and the tiny square of yard with the plainly expressed wish that the place might be her home.

"The twins said little, but their eyes were troubled. They left with the promise to think it over and let Mrs. Goddard know.

"I didn't suppose rooms could be so little," whispered Tabitha, as they closed the gate behind them.

"We couldn't grow as much as a sunflower in that yard," faltered Rachel.

"Well, anyhow, we could have house-plants!" Tabitha tried to speak cheerfully.

"Indeed we could!" agreed Rachel, rising promptly to her sister's height; "and, after all, little rooms are lots cheaper to heat than big ones." And there the matter ended for the time being.

Mr. Hazelton and the lawyer with the necessary papers appeared a few days later. As the lawyer took off his hat he handed a letter to Miss Rachel.

"I stepped into the office and got your mail," he said genially.

"Thank you," replied the lady, trying to smile. "It's from Ralph—handing it over for her sister to read."

Both the ladies were in somber black; a ribbon or a brooch seemed out of place to them that day. Tabitha broke the seal of the letter, and retired to the light of the window to read it.

The papers were spread on the table, and the pen was in Rachel's hand when a scream from Tabitha shattered the oppressive silence of the room.

"Stop—stop—oh, stop!" she cried, rushing to her sister and snatching the pen from her fingers. "We don't have to—see—read!"—pointing to the postscript written in a round boyish hand.

Oh, I say I've got a surprise for you. You think I've been fishing and loafing all summer, but I've been working for the hotels here the whole time. I've got a fine start on my money for college, and I've got a chance to work for my board all this year by helping Professor Heaton. I met him here this summer, and he's the right sort—every time. I've intended all along to help myself a bit when it came to the college racket, but I didn't mean to tell you until I knew I could do it. But it's a sure thing now.

Bye-bye. I'll be home next Saturday. Your aff. nephew,

RALPH

Rachel had read this aloud, but her voice ended in a sob instead of in the boy's name. Hazelton brushed the back of his hand across his eyes, and the lawyer looked intently out the window. For a moment there was a silence that could be felt, then Hazelton stepped to the table and fumbled noisily with the papers.

"Ladies, I withdraw my offer," he announced. "I can't afford to buy this house—I can't possibly afford it—it's too expensive." And without another word he left the room, motioning the lawyer to follow.

The sisters looked into each other's eyes and drew a long, sobbing breath. "Rachel, is it true?"

"Oh, Tabitha! Let's go out under the apple trees and let's—just know that we are there!"

And hand in hand they went.

They were going to cut down everything—every single thing!

Presbyterian Church Program

Vocal and Instrumental Music and Readings Entertain Large Audience and Ladies' Aid Fund Grows.

A large and enthusiastic audience listened to an exceptionally pleasing musical and literary evening at the First Presbyterian Church on Friday evening. The affair was given by the ladies of the church to raise money for the equipment fund for the new building.

The program was announced by Mrs. Harry P. Van Wagenen, the first number being a piano solo, "Polka de la Reine," by Raff, played by Miss Marjorie Greene, who showed such excellent interpretation, backed by adequate technique, and a flowing style as to make one prophesy a fine musical future for the young lady. She was obliged to play an encore, and every number on the program, for that matter, called back the performer.

The next number, Ralph A. Young, baritone, was a stranger to many in the audience until he stepped up on the platform. From then on, he was named as Mrs. Cady, sang Bond's "Just a-weepin' for you," then "Mad as a March hare," by Norton. Then Mr. Young, who has a very pleasing contralto voice, sang "The Clockwork."

Miss Ethel Mauterstock was next, better than in her reading "The Going of the White Swan," by Farber, a thrilling story of the far north, and her encore was "The House by the Side of the Road."

A violin solo was next on the program, Charles M. Brandt, accompanied by Mrs. Cady, playing gracefully, "Romance," by Svendsen and an encore number.

One of the loveliest numbers of the evening was the soprano solo, "There's no Spring but you," by Lehmann, sung beautifully by Mrs. Benjamin W. Johnston, who responded to the enthusiastic applause by singing a dainty Irish ballad.

Then Mr. Young sprang another highly enjoyed surprise as he gave readings with musical settings, as follows: "An Old Sweetheart of Mine," Riley-Harris, and "The Usual Way," by Fergus. His charming encore was "The Low-Backed Car."

Charles M. Brandt played for his second solo, "Romance" from a Concerto by Womawski which his audience so enjoyed that he played the following movement from the same concerto as an encore.

A truly humorous reading admirably given by Miss Mauterstock was "In the Court of the Enemy." Then by request she gave as an encore, "The Opera," just as full of real humor.

The program closed with another beautiful solo by Mrs. Johnston, "I Had My Love," with a charming plantation song in response to the continued applause.

Saugerties Beat K. H. S. Seconds

In a Fast Game at Saugerties 13 to 11—Ellenville High Won From Saugerties. First Team—K. H. S. First Team Won Practice Game.

Friday night at the Saugerties High School court the Kingston High School second team, was defeated by the close score of 13 to 11. The game was tight throughout, but Saugerties had the advantage, knowing the court. Messenger, Tetley and Menie starred for the locals. Zanlon and Donlon starred for Saugerties.

The team showed much better team work and played a better game than when they played the Combination Five.

Friday afternoon, the locals' First team beat the "Student A" team of the Y. M. C. A. by a score of 64 to 9.

The big game at Saugerties Friday night was between Ellenville and Saugerties. The latter won easily defeated by about a 20 point margin.

Use for Old Bed Springs.
A worn-out bed spring resting quietly on a city dump, might be considered as the last word in uselessness, but science, which is always on the lookout for a possible use for anything from Niagara falls to a canteen, has not overlooked the possibilities of city dumps. It has been found that these unsalable antiques make the best sort of protection from flying debris in blasting explosions. The charge is covered first with a layer of bed springs and then with some loose heavy articles such as railroad ties. When the explosion occurs the gases escape readily through the cracks and crevices in the springs and slats, but the small fragments are retained and so cause no damage to adjacent persons and property. The springs are said to be practically indestructible by this treatment and may be used repeatedly.

One Thing at a Time.
It is impossible, either in action or in thoughts, to attend to two things at once, especially if they are of any importance.

Wilson No Match for Greb

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, Jan. 19.—Harry Greb, the champion, beat Johnny Wilson, the challenger, for the middleweight championship of the world at Madison Square Garden last night, and, if necessary, will continue to do so until he grows a crutch under his arm pit. Greb proved himself Wilson's master now, forever and henceforth. If Wilson is the most worthy challenger in the middleweight division, Greb will go to his grave, hand in hand with the title.
However, this is altogether unlikely. As a matter of fact, the Pittsburgh entry may be taken by the first plausible contender that leaves in view. He seemed to have lost some of his dazzling speed last night in spite of a veritable cakewalk to the decision, in 15 rounds.

PORT EWEN

Port Ewen, Jan. 19.—The union services that have been held for two weeks in the Reformed and Methodist Churches alternately closed Friday evening. The meetings have been well attended and were very helpful. The Rev. M. F. Luther, pastor of the Reformed Church and the Rev. C. G. Gorse, pastor of the Methodist Church, preached gospel sermons filled with inspiring thoughts and left a wonderful impression on their hearers.

Mrs. Carey Secor of Broadway and Mrs. Martin Schiede of Stout avenue spent Friday with friends in Poughkeepsie and paid an official visit to Betsy Ross Council, Sons and Daughters of Liberty.

Methodist Episcopal Church, the Rev. Charles G. Gorse, pastor, Sunday school 10:00. Samuel P. Tinney, superintendent. Morning worship, 11. Sermon theme, "Godliness is Profitable." Text 1 Timothy, 6-8. Epworth League devotional meeting, 6:30. Evening worship, 7:30. Sermon theme, "Continuance in the Word." Text John 8, 31-32. Official board meeting will be held at the close of the morning service.

Church of the Presentation, the Rev. Gerald Murray, rector, Mass. 7:30-10:30. Sunday school 2 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. William Schweigel, who have been the guests of Mr. Schweigel's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schweigel, at Oak Hill Cottage on Riverside avenue, have returned to their home on Bayard street.

The Ever Ready Club will meet Monday evening, January 21, at the home of Mrs. Wallace Mable on Green street.

Reformed Church, the Rev. M. F. Luther, minister. Sunday services, Bible school at 10 a. m., C. D. Van Orden, superintendent. Morning worship at 11, sermon theme, "Loved, Washed, Exalted." Christian Endeavor meeting at 6:45 p. m., topic, "Gospel Triumphs in Japan," leader, John Bigler. Evening worship at 7:30, sermon theme, "Two Great Questions." The following is the music for the day.

MORNING.
Organ Prelude, "Sunrise." Narg-Eliet Offertory, "Invocation." Herold. Duett, Selected.
Mrs. B. C. Ellsworth and Mrs. Charles Neice.
